

HOPE REVIVED FOR DIRIGIBLE CREW

THINK ITALIA HAS LANDED ON SMALL ISLAND

Nobile Party Thought Within Few Miles Of Rescue Ship

LONDON, May 29.—Hope for the safety of General Umberto Nobile and the seven members of the crew of the lost dirigible Italia was revived at King's Bay today when the captain of the supply ship Citta Di Milano wired that he had received information leading him to believe that the dirigible had made a forced landing at Amsterdam Island, a Central News dispatch from the dirigible's base stated.

Amsterdam Island is a few miles north of Magdalena Bay where the Citta Di Milano is hemmed in by the ice floes.

The captain of the supply ship wireless that he had been in communication with a sealer which reported having received a message which apparently came from the lost dirigible.

The message received by the sealer was very faint and great difficulty was encountered in deciphering it, but the message of the Citta Di Milano's captain strongly indicates that he believes the Italia made a safe landing at Amsterdam Island.

He advised that a strong wind and a murky fog prevented the immediate dispatch of a searching party but he stated that he planned to land half of his crew as soon as possible.

These men will then proceed northward over the ice on dogsleds in an attempt to reach Amsterdam Island as soon as possible. They will be accompanied by an experienced seal hunter who is familiar with the topography of the polar regions. He will guide them over the shortest possible route to the place where the Italia is believed to have landed.

Fears for the safety of General Umberto Nobile, commander of the lost dirigible and his crew of seven, were somewhat allayed by the message.

The Italia carried sufficient food rations to keep the crew alive for more than a month. It also carried three sleds, a dozen pairs of skis and other equipment for braving Arctic weather conditions.

It is thought possible that Nobile and some of his crew may have started southward over the ice in an attempt to get back to King's Bay.

The radio message from the Citta Di Milano's captain did not reveal the time the sealer received the message thought to be from the Italia.

MARION RECORDER SHORT IN ACCOUNTS

COLUMBUS, O., May 29.—That the office of Marion County recorder "has been practically abandoned" and that Charles Emerson Smith, the missing official, was short $2,910.86 in his accounts were claims contained in a report, made public here today by State Auditor Joseph Tracy.

The report covered a special examination of the Marion County recorder's office by State Examiners T. W. Jones and Allen G. Atwill. The examination dealt with the period from Sept. 27, 1926, to April 28, last, on which date, it was stated, Smith disappeared.

"The office of Marion County recorder has been practically abandoned so far as the elected recorder (Smith) is concerned, as he left Marion on the night of April 28, and nothing has been heard of him since," the report of the examiners stated.

The examination disclosed, according to the report, that fees collected and unaccounted for totaled $2,910.86. A finding for this amount was made by the examiners against Smith and in favor of Marion County.

AFTER NEW RECORD

SEVILLE, Spain, May 29.—The Spanish aviators Capt. Iglesias and Capt. Jimenez hopped off at 11:20 a. m. upon a flight which, they hope, will result in a new world's distance record. They headed southward. It is understood that they will try to reach Karachi, India.

AL IN DERBY BUSINESS
ALBANY, N. Y., May 29.—Gov. Al. Smith has gone into the brown derby business but he hopes it's only temporary.
Today the governor received a letter from S. A. Glover, of Selden, Va., enclosing a check for $12, and reading, in part: "Please send me a brown derby like the one you wear, I'm for you and I want to wear the same kind of a hat that you do."
Asked if he intended to send the writer a brown derby, the governor said, smiling: "Sure I am."

DISCOVER POISON PLOT WHEN NEW MINE WORKERS BECOME ILL

BELLAIRE, O., May 29.—"Rat poison" has been used in an unsuccessful attempt to cause the death of the new workers at the Webb mine near here, according to Col. Don L. Caldwell, Ohio National Guard officer and special investigator of Gov. Donahy in the southeastern Ohio coal fields, here today.

The discovery was made after a non-union miner became seriously ill. It was believed that some persons, alleged union-sympathizers, placed rat poison in a spring near the mine from which drinking water is obtained for occupants of the bunkhouses.

Chemists at the state department of health will be asked to make an analysis of a quantity of water from the spring, it was said.

Several containers marked rat poison were found in the bushes nearby. Col. Don Caldwell declared it the most atrocious act he had ever seen.

The spring has been condemned and the 250 persons who had depended on the spring are hauling water nearly a mile.

Administration leaders, defeated yesterday in an attempt to adjourn congress this afternoon, were still hopeful that an agreement might be reached between friends and foes of the Boulder Dam bill that would bring the session to a close before adjournment.

The senate meanwhile listened to an endless flood of oratory that began early yesterday afternoon and lasted throughout the night. It was the second all night session held by the senate within a week in an effort to break down the Arizona filibuster.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R) of California, leader of the Boulder Dam fight, however, announced he would oppose all adjournment moves and fight to keep the senate continuously in session until a vote taken on the Colorado river measure.

He predicted his opponent whenever a vote is reached and his predictions were borne out by the one-sided majorities recorded in favor of the bill whenever test votes were taken.

The filibuster move while brought the legislative wheels of congress to a halt, it began at 2:45 yesterday afternoon when Senator Carl Hayden (D) of Arizona, took the floor. He was relieved for dinner by Senator Heflin (D) of Alabama, resuming the floor a little later and holding it again for hours.

Senator Blease (D) of South Carolina, followed him.

Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona's greatest orator and leader of the filibuster, went into action at 10:15 last night. He held the floor continuously throughout the night. After speaking four hours, he tried to get a recess until this morning, but the senate voted 83 to 6 against adjournment. The vote showed the lack of a quorum, so the senate's sergeant-at-arms was sent out with orders to "arrest" all missing senators. A score of those, who had voted against adjourning yesterday, were among the absentees, home in bed.

For four hours the senate's officers searched the city, among senators, Ashurst, Johnson and a few others sat quietly in the chamber, waiting for the arrival of sufficient senators to resume action.

At 6:35 this morning, after Senator Gillett (R) of Mass. Robinson (D) or Ark. McKeller (D) of Tenn. and Borah (R) of Ida, arrived, the filibuster was resumed.

It was said later that Borah had been sleeping in a committee room where he was overlooked by senate attaches, who helped to seek the missing senators. The others came into the chamber, heavy eyed with sleep.

At 8 o'clock the senate had been in continuous session for twenty-one hours while Ashurst had been on his feet for nearly ten. He wore a green eyeshade and walked around the senate chamber, while he "explained" and "explained" Arizona's opposition to the bill.

Administration leaders hoped to arrange a compromise in the Boulder Dam battle, by which the bill would be made the senate's "unfinished business" for the next December's session while ending the present session late this afternoon. Such an agreement would terminate the heart-breaking, wearying filibuster and virtually insure enactment of the Boulder Dam bill next winter.

Ashurst obtained a "breather" shortly before eight o'clock by offering forty-five amendments to the bill. It took the clerk twenty-three minutes to read them. Ashurst again arose wearily and resumed his attack on the measure.

On the Republican side Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has invaded the state against Senator Guy D. Goff, the favorite son candidate. Nineteen votes at Kansas City are at stake.

Gov. Al. Smith of New York is opposed by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri for the sixteen votes to Houston.

In addition there are full state tickets up for nomination. This is the third state in which Hoover has fought a favorite son. He won in Ohio, but lost in Indiana. His backers claim West Virginia although a close vote is anticipated.

Today's election will wind up the Republican primaries. For that reason the results are being closely watched. A victory for Hoover would bring his total claimed, pledged and instructed delegates, close to 500, not far short of the nomination.

BOULDER DAM FIGHT FILIBUSTER HALTS ADJOURNMENT PLAN

City Searched For Missing Solons To Continue Session

WASHINGTON, May 29.—With the senate in continuous session throughout the night in a weary but dramatic effort to smash the Arizona filibuster against the famous Boulder Dam bill, the seventy-ninth congress early today looked forward with longing eyes to adjournment.

FOURTEEN BALLOON PILOTS TO COMPETE IN NATIONAL RACE

Dirigible Los Angeles Will Be Present If Weather Favors

PITTSBURGH, May 29.—With plans for the 1928 national balloon race at Bettis Field, McKeesport tomorrow complete, sponsors today awaited favorable weather reports for final assurance that the dirigible Los Angeles will fly here from Lakehurst, N. J., for the race.

Drawing for places in the race completed the fourteen pilots who will compete in the race today gave their balloons final inspection. Last place in the starting, highly coveted by balloonists, went to the American Business Club, Akron, O., entry.

The balloons will take off tomorrow afternoon at intervals of five minutes, the first leaving at 6 p. m. (EDT).

The first balloon to take off will be the Detroit News, William G. Naylor, pilot. It will be followed by the Detroit No. 4, entered by the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, with George Hineman, of Gross Hill, Mich., pilot.

Army No. 3, the first of three U. S. army entries, with Lieut. Paul Evert, pilot, will follow, to be followed in turn by Gardner eight, H. E. Honeywell, Clayton, Mo., pilot; Goodyear 5, W. T. Van Orman, Akron, pilot; Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Sgt. W. Bennett, Dayton, pilot; WWJ (Detroit News) G. M. Legalle, Detroit, pilot; army No. 2, Capt. E. W. Hill, pilot; army No. 1, Capt. W. E. Kepner, pilot; city of Cleveland (Cleveland Chamber of Commerce) Carl K. Wollam, Akron, pilot; Detroit No. 2, E. J. Hill, Detroit, pilot; two navy balloons, piloted by Lt. J. H. Stevens and Lt. T. G. W. Seville, and the American Business Club of Akron, piloted by C. A. Palmer, Akron.

Planning to kill the bill, which has already passed the senate, friends of the measure opened a campaign to force its consideration.

A rule giving it preferred status on the calendar has not yet been presented to the house, and inquiries of sponsors have brought no definite promise of action from leaders.

The Dale bill would increase the annuity of retired workers from $1,000 to $1,200 a year and liberalize rules governing retirement.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Four-year-old Edison Jones today was recovering from a skin grafting operation which entailed the insertion of his left arm, almost wholly bare of skin, between two slits in the skin of his abdomen.

The boy's arm was crushed recently by a motor truck, and the skin refused to heal, necessitating the grafting operation. It is expected that the arm will be cut away from the abdomen with its new coat of skin within two weeks, hold to work, he says.

CORPORATION RATE IS MOST IMPORTANT CUT PROVIDED FOR

Repeal Of Automobile Tax Means Cut Of $60,000,000

WASHINGTON, May 29.—President Coolidge today signed the $222,495,000 tax reduction bill.

Corporations gained the chief benefit under the bill, with the corporation rate cut to 12 per cent.

A reduction of about $60,000,000 was effected through repeal of the automobile tax.

The president wrote his name on the bill shortly after eight o'clock. None was present with him.

Most of the reductions will not become effective until next January 1.

The reduction was close to the limit set by the administration. The bill was approved by Secretary of Treasury Mellon before the president affixed his signature.

One bill constituted a compromise before the senate and house, with the senate winning on most of the important points. The house passed a $28,000,000 reduction, while the senate cut the figure to $204,000,000.

No benefit will accrue to the small tax payer under the new law, as the income tax brackets were not touched.

Passage of the bill in the senate resulted from a coalition of Republicans and Insurgents. The latter agreed to support the administration's proposal in return for retention of the federal estate tax, which Mellon wanted repealed.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Two unidentified men were killed and a man and boy were injured early today when three freight trains were wrecked between here and Kenmore.

The Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio freight trains are said to have collided head-on due to fog obscuring signals.

The bucking of cars caused another train to be damaged it was said.

The dead men are believed to have been tramps. The injured boy is said to be John McHaffey, 16, of Youngstown. He was taken to a local hospital. The injured man is William Penn, 35, of Weston-Salem, N. C., and is an Akron hospital.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Dale retirement bill, liberalizing pensions of federal workers, today was the only major piece of legislation remaining on the house calendar with possibility of enactment into law.

Fearing that house leaders planned to kill the bill, which has already passed the senate, friends of the measure opened a campaign to force its consideration.

A rule giving it preferred status on the calendar has not yet been presented to the house, and inquiries of sponsors have brought no definite promise of action from leaders.

CHILD STOLEN FROM BED, ATTACKED AND SLAIN DURING NIGHT

Parallel Seen Between Toledo Case And Kidnaping-Murder Of Youngstown Girl; "Small Auto" Object Of Huge Man Hunt.

TOLEDO, O., May 29.—One of the greatest man hunts organized in years began here today when the body of seven year old Dorothy Sielagowski, was found by her father, Alex, on the front porch of the home of the child's grandparents. The girl had been stolen from her bed, brutally assaulted by the driver of a small dark auto, choked to death, and her body cast upon the porch of her grandparents who lived a few steps from the girl's home.

The little victim was stolen from her bed as she slept in her bedroom with three sisters, Stella, 15, Leona, 5, and Carolina, 2. In an adjoining room slept the girl's father with two brothers, Ray, 11, and Stanley, 6. The mother is a patient in a state institution.

The fiend, according to police, let himself into the Sielagowski home by means of a pass key at the kitchen door.

As the little girl was seized in her bed she attempted to scuffle, started to notify neighbors and the noise awakened her sister Leona.

As the intruder carried his victim from the room, five year old Leona hurried to her father's bed screaming: "Oh, they're taking Dorothy."

The father stepped to his daughter's room and finding Dorothy absent hurried to the lower floor where he saw a small auto speeding away.

As he went into the yard, the father told police, a huge covered auto truck drove away. In the dim light of the breaking dawn the father found a huddled form in a corner of the porch. It was the lifeless form of his daughter. A pair of her neck, one eye was discolored and her little shoulder bore the imprint of the fiend's teeth.

Coroner F. G. Kretz, who examined the body, declared that the little victim had been criminally assaulted, and that death was due to strangulation.

As police began the hunt for the murderer, detective headquarters communicated with Youngstown, where a two weeks' search for ten year old Beatrice Rosenbaum ended Sunday with the finding of her body in a wooded ravine.

The Youngstown girl had been enticed from her home, according to police, and taken away in an auto which was also described as "a small dark sedan."

"DESERT RAT" WINS ANACONDA BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—Atty. Gen. Geo. Campbell Carson, one-time picturesque "desert rat" prepared here today to take his suit against the Anaconda Copper Company back to a federal court for an accounting, following a decision handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here in favor of the prospector who has waged a long legal battle against alleged infringements of his patent on a blast furnace.

Ruling that a federal court decision favorable to the Anaconda Copper Company should be reversed, the appellate court rendered a verdict that affords indirectly infringement suits, involving some $20,000,000. The blast furnaces used by the Anaconda Copper Company, the appellate court declared, constitute an infringement of Carson's patent. Similar furnaces used by other smelting companies throughout the country are, the basis of several other suits, brought by Carson and now pending trial.

LONDON, May 29.—Hope for the safety of General Umberto Nobile and the seven-teen members of the crew of the lost dirigible Italia was revived at King's Bay today when the captain of the supply ship Citta Di Milano wireless-ly that he had received information leading him to believe that the dirigible had made a forced landing at Amsterdam Island, a Central News dispatch from the dirigible's base stated.

Amsterdam Island is a few miles north of Magdalena Bay where the Citta Di Milano is hemmed in by the ice floes.

The captain of the supply ship wireless-ly that he had been in communication with a sealer which reported having received a message which apparently came from the lost dirigible.

The message received by the sealer was very faint and great difficulty was encountered in deciphering it, but the message of the Citta Di Milano's captain strongly indicates that he believes the Italia made a safe landing at Amsterdam Island.

He advised that a strong wind and a murky fog prevented the immediate dispatch of a searching party but he stated that he planned to land half of his crew as soon as possible.

These men will then proceed northward over the ice on dogsleds in an attempt to reach Amsterdam Island as soon as possible. They will be accompanied by an experienced seal hunter who is familiar with the topography of the polar regions. He will guide them over the shortest possible route to the place where the Italia is believed by the supply ship's captain to have landed.

For the safety of General Umberto Nobile, commander of the lost dirigible and his crew of seventeen, were somewhat allayed by the message.

The Italia carried sufficient food rations to keep the crew for more than a month. It also carried three sleds, a dozen pairs of skis and other equipment for braving Arctic weather conditions.

It is thought possible that Nobile and some of his crew may have started southward over the ice in an attempt to get back to King's Bay.

The radio message from the Citta Di Milano's captain did not reveal the time the sealer received the message thought to be from the Italia.

LAWS DESIGNED TO PREVENT SCANDALS URGED BY PROBERS

Nye Recommends Supervision
Of All Oil
Leases

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Legislation to prevent a repetition of the naval oil scandals was recommended in a report to congress by Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota, chairman of the Teapot Dome committee.

Another report, by Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, summarized the committee's work in running down the Continental Trading Company's $3,080,000 Liberty bond deal.

Nye particularly emphasized the need for congressional supervision of all leases or transfers of naval oil reserves. He suggested also yearly auditing of all campaign expenditures and receipts in federal office contests, and a "tightening up" of the corrupt practices act to provide better tax collections and prevent delay of delinquent taxes.

"The evasions which have been uncovered by the committee show that the government must tighten up in these matters," he said. "Changes in the criminal code procedure are necessary to avoid delays such as hindered the activities of the senate committee here."

Walsh criticized the treasury for its long silence in the matter of collection of taxes due the government from the Continental deal and pointed out that expenses of the committee, which has turned up information resulting in the recovery of more than $2,000,000 have been $14,165.

He concluded with a denunciation of those connected with the activities of the Continental Company, characterizing it as a "conspiracy to defraud the government."

"It seems to me to have been the ill-gotten gains of a contemptible private steal, the speculations of trusted officers of great industrial houses, pilfering from their own companies, robbing their own stockholders," he said, "the share of the boodle coming to one of the freebooters, serving in part as the price of perjury of a member of the president's cabinet."

RADIO SHORTHAND NOTE TO LONDON

NEW YORK, May 29.—For the first time a greeting in shorthand has been received across the ocean. The greeting, from Alexander S. Massell, president of the Commercial Education Association, was sent last night to a banquet held by the National Gregg Association at the Exchange Hotel, in Liverpool, England.

It was photographed and the negative placed on the photoradio transmitter at the offices of the Radio Corporation of America. It was 3x5 inches and a short time later the facsimile was delivered to the banquet in England.

YELLOWLEY ORDERS AGENTS IN UNIFORM

CHICAGO, May 29.—Prohibition agents assigned to highway duty must wear distinctive uniforms, Administrator E. C. Yellowley ruled today.

The measure is expected to curtail promiscuous shooting, and is intended to protect both citizens and dry officers.

"The old excuse of mistaking prohibition agents for bandits will no longer hold," explained Mr. Yellowley. "On the other hand there will be less shooting by dry agents; they will not fire unless fired upon."

BOULDER DAM FIGHT FILIBUSTER HALTS ADJOURNMENT PLAN

City Searched For Missing
Solons To Continue Session

WASHINGTON, May 29.—With the senate in continuous session throughout the night in a weary but dramatic effort to smash the Arizona filibuster against the famous Boulder Dam bill, the seventh congress early today looked forward with longing eyes to adjournment.

Administration leaders, defeated yesterday in an attempt to adjourn congress this afternoon, were still hopeful that an agreement might be reached between friends and foes of the Boulder Dam bill that would bring the session to a close before nightfall.

The senate meanwhile listened to an endless flood of oratory that began early yesterday afternoon and lasted throughout the night. It was the second all night session held by the senate within a week in an effort to break down the Arizona filibuster.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R) of California, leader of the Boulder Dam fight, however announced he was opposed to all adjournment moves and fight to keep the senate continuously in session until a vote was taken on the Colorado river measure. He predicted his enactment whenever a vote is reached and his predictions were borne out by the one-sided majority recorded in favor of the bill whenever test votes were taken.

The filibuster movement while brought the legislative wheels of congress to a halt. It began at 2:45 yesterday afternoon when Senator Carl Hayden (D) of Arizona, took the floor. He was relieved for dinner by Senator Herlin (D) of Alabama, resuming the floor a little later and holding it again for hours. Senator Biase (D) of South Carolina, followed him.

Senator Henry Ashurst, Arizona's greatest orator and leader of the filibuster, went into action at 10:15 last night. He held the floor continuously throughout the night. After speaking four hours, he tried to get a recess until this morning, but the senate voted 35 to 6 against adjournment. The vote showed the lack of a quorum so the senate's sergeant-at-arms was sent out with orders to "arrest" all missing senators. A score of those, who had voted against adjourning yesterday, were among the absentees, home in bed.

For four hours the senate's officers searched the city, arresting senators. Ashurst, Johnson and a few others sat quietly in the chamber, waiting for the arrival of sufficient senators to resume action. At 6:35 this morning, after Senator Gillett (R) of Mass., Robinson (D) of Ark., McKellicott (D) of Tenn., and Borah (R) of Ida., arrived, the filibuster was resumed.

It was said later that Borah had been sleeping in a committee room where he was overlooked by senate attaches, who helped to seek the missing senators. The others came into the chamber, heavy eyed with sleep.

At 8 o'clock the senate had been in continuous session for twenty-one hours while Ashurst had been on his feet for nearly ten. He wore a green eye-shade and walked around the senate chamber, while he "explained" and "explained" Arkana's opposition to the bill.

Administration leaders hoped to arrange a compromise in the Boulder Dam battle, by which the bill would be made the senate's "unfinished business" for the next December session while ending the present session late this afternoon. Such an agreement would terminate the heart-breaking, wearying filibuster and virtually insure enactment of the Boulder Dam bill next winter.

Ashurst obtained a "breather" shortly before eight o'clock by offering forty-five amendments to the bill. It took the clerk twenty-three minutes to read them. Ashurst again arose wearily and resumed his attack on the measure.

At the Republican side Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has invaded the state against Senator Guy D. Goff, the favorite son candidate. Nineteen votes at Kansas City are at stake.

Gov. J. Smith of New York is opposed by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri for the sixteen votes to Houston.

In addition there are full state tickets up for nomination. This is the third state in which Hoover has fought a favorite son. His backers claim West Virginia. Although a close vote is anticipated.

Today's election will wind up the Republican primaries. For that reason the results are being closely watched. A victory for Hoover would bring his total claimed, pledged and instructed delegates close to 500, not far short of the nomination.

WEST VIRGINIA IS HOLDING PRIMARY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 29.—West Virginians trooped to the polls today to settle one of the hottest primary election fights of recent years.

HUGE MONOPLANE WILL START AUSTRALIA FLIGHT WEDNESDAY

OAKLAND, Cal., May 29.—Last-minute preparation completed, the huge triple-engine monoplane Southern Cross was today pronounced ready to hop off on a projected trans-Pacific aerial expedition to Australia.

Weather permitting, the giant plane will take off early tomorrow or Thursday on the first leg of the flight, a 2,400 mile hop to Honolulu. It will leave either from the Oakland airport, where it now rests in a hangar, or from the San Francisco airport, depending on wind conditions.

NEW MODERATOR

Dr. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, Cal., has been named moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in session at Tulsa, Okla., succeeding Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York City, the outgoing moderator. Dr. Walker defeated Dr. Ambrose Dunkel, of Indianapolis, for the post.

FOURTEEN BALLOON PILOTS TO COMPETE IN NATIONAL RACE

Dirigible Los Angeles
Will Be Present If Weather Favors

PITTSBURGH, May 29.—With plans for the 1928 national balloon race at Bettis Field, Meekesport tomorrow complete, sponsors today awaited favorable weather reports for final assurance that the dirigible Los Angeles will fly here from Lakehurst, N. J., for the race.

Drawing for places in the race completed the fourteen pilots who will compete in the race today gave their balloons final inspection. Last place in the starting, highly coveted by balloonists, went to the American Business Club, Akron, O., entry.

The balloons will take off tomorrow afternoon at intervals of five minutes, the first leaving at 6 p. m. (EDT).

The first balloon to take off will be the Detroit News, William G. Naylor, pilot. It will be followed by the Detroit No. 4, entered by the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, with George Hineman, of Gross Be, Mich., pilot.

Army No. 3, the first of three U. S. army entries, with Lieut. Paul Evert, pilot, will follow, to be followed in turn by Gardner eight, H. E. Honeywell, Clayton, Mo., pilot; Goodyear 5, W. T. Van Orman, Akron, pilot; Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Sgt. W. Bennett, Dayton, pilot; WWJ (Detroit News) G. M. Legalle, Detroit, pilot; army No. 2, Capt. E. W. Hill, pilot; army No. 1, Capt. W. E. Kepner, pilot; city of Cleveland (Cleveland Chamber of Commerce) Carl K. Voliam, Akron, pilot; Detroit No. 2, E. J. Hill, Detroit, pilot; two navy balloons, piloted by Lt. J. H. Stevens and Lt. T. G. W. Settle, and the American Business Club of Akron, piloted by C. A. Palmer, Akron.

KILLS ONE, WOUNDS WIFE AND SUICIDES

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., May 29.—After killing his brother-in-law and seriously wounding his wife, Emil Martelich, 35, early today committed suicide, according to police.

CORPORATION RATE IS MOST IMPORTANT CUT PROVIDED FOR

Repeal Of Automobile
Tax Means Cut Of $60,000,000

WASHINGTON, May 29.—President Coolidge today signed the $222,495,000 tax reduction bill.

Corporations gained the chief benefit under the bill, with the corporation rate cut to 12 per cent.

A reduction of about $60,000,000 was effected through repeal of the automobile tax.

The president wrote his name on the bill shortly after eight o'clock. None was present with him.

Most of the reductions will not become effective until next January 1.

The reduction was close to the limit set by the administration. The bill was approved by Secretary of Treasury Mellon before the president affixed his signature.

One bill constituted a compromise before the senate and house, with the senate winning on most of the important points. The house passed a $289,000,000 reduction, while the senate cut the figure to $294,000,000.

No benefit will accrue to the small tax payer under the new law, as the income tax brackets were not touched.

Passage of the bill in the senate resulted from a coalition of Republicans and Insurgents. The latter agreed to support the administration's proposal in return for retention of the federal estate tax, which Mellon wanted repealed.

TWO KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

BARBERTON, O., May 29.—Two unidentified men were killed and a man and boy were injured early today when three freight trains were wrecked between here and Kenmore.

The Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio freight trains are said to have collided head-on due to fog obscuring signals.

The buckling of cars caused another train to be damaged it was said.

The dead men are believed to have been tramps. The injured boy is said to be John McHaffey, 15, of Youngstown. He was taken to a local hospital. The injured man is William Penn, 35, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and is an Akron hospital.

PENSION FUND BILL DISPUTED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Dale retirement bill, liberalizing pensions of federal workers, today was the only major piece of legislation remaining on the house calendar with possibility of enactment into law.

Fearing that house leaders planned to kill the bill, which has already passed the senate, friends of the measure opened a campaign to force its consideration.

A rule giving it preferred status on the calendar has not yet been presented to the house, and inquiries of sponsors have brought no definite promise of action from leaders.

The Dale bill would increase the annuity of retired workers from $1,000 to $1,200 a year and liberalize rules governing retirement.

STUDENTS RIOT AT JUGO-SLAV OFFICE

ROME, May 29.—Incensed by the recent anti-Italian demonstrations recently staged in Jugo-Slavia, 1,500 university students today surged about the front of the Jugo-Slavian legation quarters and serious consequences were prevented only by the timely arrival of police.

Just as it seemed certain that the student mob would invade the legation, mounted police arrived on the scene and dispersed the students by charging into them.

Premier Mussolini has instructed the Italian minister at Belgrade to lodge a formal protest against the anti-Italian demonstrations with the Jugo-Slavian government, and demand reparations.

CHILD STOLEN FROM BED, ATTACKED AND SLAIN DURING NIGHT

Parallel Seen Between Toledo Case And Kidnaping-
Murder Of Youngstown Girl; "Small Auto"
Object Of Huge Man Hunt.

TOLEDO, O., May 29.—One of the greatest man hunts organized in years began here today when the body of seven year old Dorothy Sielagowski, was found by her father, Alex, on the front porch of the home of the child's grandparents. The girl had been stolen from her bed, brutally assaulted by the driver of a small dark auto, choked to death, and her body cast upon the porch of her grandparents who lived a few steps from the girl's home.

The little victim was stolen from her bed as she slept in her bedroom with three sisters, Stella, 15, Leona, 5, and Carolina, 2. In an adjoining room slept the girl's father with two brothers, Ray, 11, and Stanley, 6. The mother is a patient in a state institution.

The fiend, according to police, let himself into the Sielagowski home by means of a pass key at the kitchen door.

As the little girl was taken to the police station to be identified, relatives. In a few minutes his sound took him to the home of the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Dobrenizki, who reside across the street from the girl's home.

The father stepped to his daughter's room and finding Dorothy absent hurried to the lower floor where he saw a small auto speeding away.

"Oh, they're taking Dorothy!" the father screamed.

The father stepped to his daughter's room and finding Dorothy absent hurried to the lower floor where he saw a small auto speeding away.

As he went into the yard, the father told police, a huge covered auto truck drove away. In the dim light of the house, the father saw a huddled form in a corner of the porch. It was the lifeless form of his daughter. A pair of her neck, one eye was discolored and her little shoulder bore the imprint of the fiend's teeth.

Gorner F. G. Kretz, who examined the body, declared that the little victim had been criminally assaulted, and that death was due to strangulation.

As police began the hunt for the murderer, detective headquarters were alerted, and taking days in a two weeks' search for ten year old Beatrice Rosenbaum ended Sunday with the finding of her body in a wooded ravine.

The Youngstown girl had been enticed from her home, according to police, and taken away in an auto which was also described as "a small dark sedan."

"DESERT RAT" WINS ANACONDA BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—At times for Geo. Campbell Carson, one of the picturesque "desert rats," prepared here today to take his suit against the Anaconda Copper Company back to a federal court for an accounting, following a decision handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here in favor of the prospects.

"He is out so far as the Rosenbaums after stealing the Lieberman prisoner last night said he was not the man they saw drive away from the Rosenbaum home with Beatrice May 14."

"He is out so far as the Rosenbaums after stealing the Lieberman prisoner last night said he was not the man they saw drive away from the Rosenbaum home with Beatrice May 14."

One of the two men held here in jail for questioning in connection with Beatrice's case was released. He was taken into custody yesterday, principally because he was once employed near the spot where the child's body was found, it was said.

Arrangements were completed last night for Beatrice's funeral to be held here at 10 o'clock this morning. Attendance will be limited to the immediate family. Dr. Max Brown, Rabbi of a local synagogue is to conduct the services.

Mrs. Max Rosenbaum, mother of Beatrice, dressed in black, sat in her little parlor last night and rocking back and forth, razing into space, received consolation from her friends.

Members of the Children of Israel congregation to which the Rosenbaums belong prepared Beatrice's body for burial late yesterday, according to the Jewish Orthodox religion. When completed several hundred persons passed the white casket in which lay the remains of the 10-year-old child who either wandered or was kidnapped from her home two weeks ago and found dead May 27 in a wooded ravine near Salem.

"This man could not have been normal. No man in his right mind could have killed his own sons," said the basis of several other suits, admitted confession, wherein he admitted having induced his boys to jump into the Indiana Harbor ship canal after tying iron weights to their bodies, was read in court.

The defense argued Chisholm's mind was disordered as a result of shell shock during the war.

TURNING THE TABLES GRAFT CHILD'S ARM INTO ABDOMEN SKIN

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Four-year-old Edison Jones today was recovering from a skin grafting operation which entailed the insertion of his left arm, almost wholly bare of skin, between two slits in the skin of his abdomen.

The boy's arm was crushed recently by a motor truck, and the skin refused to heal, necessitating the grafting operation. It is expected that the arm will be cut away from the abdomen with its new coat of skin within two weeks.

NEW SILVER BRIDGE
WILL BE DEDICATED WITH CEREMONIES

GALLIPOLIS, O., May 29.—Lieut. Gov. W. G. Pickrel of Ohio and Gov. H. M. Gore of West Virginia will take part in the ceremonies at the dedication of the new Gallipolis-Point Pleasant Silver Bridge May 30. Judge Roscoe J. Mauck of the fourth Ohio District Court of Appeals will be the master of ceremonies and will introduce the speakers at 2 p. m. The speaker of the day will be Senator M. M. Neely of W. Va., who will come from Fairmont, W. Va., by airplane.

Other speakers will be Congressman T. A. Jenkins of the Tenth Ohio District, Congressman James A. Hughes of the Fourth W. Va. District and Dr. Chas. E. Holzer, president of the W. Va. Ohio River Bridge Company, builders of the bridge.

The dedication will take place near the state line on the Ohio side of the bridge and will be preceded by a pageant play representing the history of Gallipolis and Point Pleasant.

The pageant will review the early explorations and modes of travel in the Ohio Valley. Famous historical characters connected with this region and its settlement will be presented, including George Washington, Cornstalk, chief of the Shawnees; General Charles Lewis with the Virginia militia; Anne Bailey, frontier scout; Daniel Boone; General Putnam; and Colonel Robert Safford of the Ohio Company. After the dedication the bridge will be thrown open to the public with a parade of all the vehicles.

PITTSBURGH, May 29.—Letters flashed to all parts of the world at a speed making airmail seem slow in comparison, superceding telegraph and revolutionizing communication. This was the prediction made here by R. H. Ranger, inventor of photo-radio.

Already widely receives the latest fashions from Paris by photo-radio which is used extensively by clothing merchants and husband, when forced to embargo money with which to meet the bills, finds that his fingerprints and photograph have been photo-radioed to the police ahead, as he starts for Canada.

Used for Pictures

The process is also being widely used by the Radio Corporation of America to transmit pictures for news and commercial purposes. Ranger pointed out. The signature to a check in a million dollar transaction was recently sent by photo-radio at a large saving in interest involved in transmitting the check by any other method.

The principal factor which at present prevents the process from replacing telegraph is the cost, the inventor said. The cost of transmitting a facsimile between New York and London is $12 under existing schedules. The picture as sent measures five by seven inches but the image received is spread over an area nine times as large.

"When the process has been perfected and the point reached where photo-radio can take the place of telegraph, the receiver of a message will be able to have perfect confidence that it has not been garbled in transmission," declared Ranger. "We will be able to see it just as it was written by the sender."

Eliminates Error

"The fact that the process eliminates all possibility of error has already brought it into general use for the transmission of bond circulars in international commerce, in which it is of the utmost importance that there will not be a single error," he continued. "We are trying to make it economically justifiable for a person to send a message by photo-radio in place of telegraph."

Photo-radio is an entirely different process from television and in many respects presents harder problems, Ranger explained.

Poems that Live

OUT IN THE FIELD WITH GOD

THE little cares that fretted me,
I lost them yesterday
Among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds at play,
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees.

The fears of what may come to pass,
I cast them all away
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay,
Among the husking of the corn,
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born,

Out in the fields with God.

MAY QUEEN CROWNED MONDAY AT ANNUAL CEDAR DAY PROGRAM

Crowning of Miss Mary Webster, Clifton, member of the graduating class, as the 1928 Queen of the May by Miss May McKay, Kingman, last year's queen, was the principal feature of annual Cedar Day exercises on the Cedarville College campus Tuesday morning.

The ceremony was advanced one day from the usual date because of conflict with Memorial Day. The Cedar Day oration was delivered by Edward Wones, Springfield.

The exercises began with the grand march, which culminated in the crowning of the May Queen.

Nine different forms of folk dances came next on the program.

A fairy dance was given by Miss Norma McCartney, Springfield, a freshman, then a "mama doll" dance with ten girls taking part and a "sailor doll" dance with six girls participating.

The fourth dance was styled an Apache dance, given by Miss Irene Shannon, Ashabula, O., and David Adair, Narragansett Pier, R. I.

The folk dances continued with a Dutch dance with eight girls, a Spanish Doll dance portrayed by seven girls and a Tierroc Tierette dance, with Ruth Burns, Cedarville and Chester Violet, Mechanicsburg.

The dance program closed with a Japanese Doll dance with seven girls taking part and a China Doll dance with nine girls.

MISS MARY WEBSTER

Concluding the exercises, each class of the college put on a stunt. The forenoon program was followed by a picnic dinner and a baseball game between the Cedarville and Antioch College varsity nines in the afternoon.

The faculty reception to the seniors will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at Alford Memorial gymnasium, continuing the festivities of commencement week.

TALK ON JUVENILE WORK FEATURE OF MEETING OF LEAGUE

"Cooperation between the Juvenile Court and the Social Service League," was the subject of an interesting address by Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, of the Greene County Juvenile Court, at the monthly meeting of the executive board of the Social Service League, at City Hall, Monday evening. Dr. B. R. McClellan presided in the absence of J. H. Nagley, president.

No board meetings will be held, unless called, until September, it was decided. The president and treasurer were given power to pay bills during the recessed period.

During April, the League assisted, with service or relief, fifty-four families, three travelers' aid cases, one infirmity case and three transients.

The League also gave assistance in ten cases where the family was too large for the income, in three cases of cancer, two of injury, two cases of where death was in the home, five cases caused by penitents old age, three cases of needy widows and a number of others.

The League gave groceries to thirteen families and coal to eight. Milk costing $24 was given to five families. Household equipment, medicine, clothing and shoes were also given to a number. A large number of donations were received. The organization co-operated with a number of other bodies and assisted in three Kiwanis baby clinics.

INDICTED MAN IS FINED $1

A fine of $1 and costs was imposed upon L. O. Peterson, Springfield, driver of a school bus for Spring Valley Twp. School, when he appeared in Common Pleas Court Saturday and changed his plea from not guilty to guilty to a grand jury indictment for abusing an officer.

Peterson's jury trial was scheduled for Thursday, May 31.

He was indicted by the May grand jury on a charge of threatening to strike William Copey, marshal of Spring Valley, and acting in a menacing manner.

A fine over a dog owned by Peterson started the trouble. Acting on complaints received, the village marshal had asked that the dog be tied up.

NEW HOME SUPERINTENDENT TO ASSUME POSITION HERE MONDAY

The Rev. James Norman King, who was appointed superintendent of the O. S. and S. O. Home by the board of trustees, Sunday, visited the Home Monday and made arrangements to bring his family here next Monday, June 4.

The Rev. Mr. King has had a variety of experience that has fitted him for the head office at the state institution. He is a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary and has preached eighteen years. He served overseas during the World War with the 78th Division during the St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne offensives and was one of the few chaplains to be awarded the distinguished service cross. He was commissioned captain during his service.

His home is at Lima, O., but he has been located recently at Bluffton, O. He taught social science in the Bluffton College 1921-26 and in 1927 was associated with the state welfare department as chief of the state probation service bureau. During the last year he has taught in Bluffton High School as instructor in economics and sociology.

He was associated for two years with the State Board of Control, at Lima. During his ministry he held pastorates at Bluffton, Wapakoneta, Hicksville, 1910-13, Urichville 1913-16; Lima, 1916-17 and then entered war service. He served in the war almost two years.

He succeeds T. E. Andrews, Marion, who is now serving with the Ohio National Guard in the Ohio coal mine strike area.

The Rev. Mr. King is the father of seven children and will bring his wife and family to this city within the next week.

CINCINNATI MAN ADDRESSES ROTARY

William Licht, past president of the Cincinnati Rotary Club, and head of the boys' activities of that club, addressed Xenia Rotarians at the Elks' Club, Tuesday noon.

Boys' work is carried on in a large way by the Cincinnati Club and Mr. Licht described the various activities. He told of the recent "hobby fair" held by the club and also the purchase of a forty-acre tract, including a lake, for a crippled children's camp.

Troop 45, B. S. A., will assemble at 1:30 p. m., Wednesday at the Lutheran Church to take part in the Memorial Day parade. Each patrol is urged to have a full at- tendance.

After the exercises at the cem- etery, the boys will go on a little excursion and visit one of the historical parts of the county. Weather permitting, the troop will spend the night at the Scout cabin. Each Scout is asked to bring provisions for two meals. The cabin will be opened at 11 a. m., Wednesday.

Troop 41 is invited to the hike and any Scout wishing to go is asked to get in touch with Scout- master Blackburn, Troop 45.

Troop 45 held practice of the drum corps Monday evening and is planning to take part in the Memorial Day program. The troop attended the special memorial ser- vices Sunday morning at the Lutheran Church and the pastor gave an interesting talk to Scouts. About thirty Scouts attended with their scoutmasters and commit- tees.

Poems that Live

OUT IN THE FIELD WITH GOD

THE little cares that fretted me,
I lost them yesterday
Among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds at play,
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees.

The fears of what may come to pass,
I cast them all away
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay,
Among the husking of the corn,
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born.

Out in the fields with God,

MAY QUEEN CROWNED MONDAY AT ANNUAL CEDAR DAY PROGRAM

Crowning of Miss Mary Webster, Clifton, member of the graduating class, as the 1928 Queen of the May by Miss May McKay, King- man, last year's queen, was the principal feature of annual Cedar Day exercises on the Cedarvale College grounds Tuesday morning. The ceremony was advanced one day from the usual date because of conflict with Memorial Day. The Cedar Day oration was del- ivered by Edward Woines, Spring- field.

The exercises began with the grand march, which culminated in the crowning of the May Queen. Nine different forms of folk dances came next on the program. A fairy dance was given by Miss Norma McCartney, Springfield, a freshman, then a "mambo doll" dance with ten girls taking part, and a "sailor doll" dance with six girls participating.

The fourth dance was styled an Apache dance, given by Miss Irene Shannon, Ashtabula, O., and David Adair, Narragansett Pier, R. I.

The dance program closed with a Japanese ball dance with seven girls taking part and a China Doll dance with nine girls.

MISS MARY WEBSTER

Concluding the exercises, each class of the college put on a stunt. The afternoon program was fol- lowed by a picnic dinner and a baseball game between the Cedar- ville and Ashland College varsity teams in the afternoon.

The faculty reception to the seniors will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at Alford Memorial High School, continuing the festi- vities of commencement week.

MEMORIAL DAY PARADE WILL START FOR CEMETERY AT 2:30

Xenia's annual Memorial Day ob- servance will be featured by the customary parade of patriotic or- ganizations Wednesday afternoon. All organizations are requested to be in line at 2 p. m. and the procession will move promptly at 2:30 p. m., from Main and Collier Sts., in the following order:

Police Department, L. S. Barnes, grand marshal; Robert Brewer, chief of staff; Elton Evans, chief of aides; Lucile Laurens and Dor- thy Andrews, aides; O. S. and S. O. Home Band and Battalion, au- tomobile with Dr. W. P. Edmunds, speaker, and the reception com- mittee; O. S. and S. O. Home au- tomobile; Andrew Hutchinson and Lyle Delph, aides;

TALK ON JUVENILE WORK FEATURE OF MEETING OF LEAGUE

"Cooperation between the Juve- nile Court and the Social Service League," was the subject of an in- teresting address by Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, of the Greene County Juvenile Court, at the monthly meeting of the executive board of the Social Service League, at City Hall, Monday evening. Dr. R. R. McClellan presided in the absence of J. H. Nagig, president.

No board meeting will be held, unless called, until September, it was decided. The president and treasurer were given power to pay bills during the recessed period.

During April, the League as- sisted with service or relief, fifty- four families, three travelers and cases, non-litigious cases and three transients.

The League also gave assistance in ten cases where the family was too large for the income. In three cases of cancer, two of injury, two cases of where death was in the home, five cases caused by peni- less old age, three cases of needy widows and a number of others.

The League gave groceries to thirteen families and cost to eight. Milk, costing $24 was given to five families. Household equipment, medicine, clothing and shoes were also given to a number. A large number of donations were received. The organization cooperated with a number of other bodies and as- sisted in three Kiwanis baby clinics.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

MAN AND HIS FELLOW MORTAL — A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast; but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.—Prov. 12:10.

FAMILY TYRANNY

Among the greatest of our Anglo-Saxon blessings is the fact that family is a declining institution in the opinion of Aldous Huxley, the English essayist. According to Mr. Huxley the Anglo-Saxons have come more nearly to abolishing the family than any other civilized race and, he thinks, we are congratulated for it.

"Ancestor worship and the family system," he says, "are certainly responsible for the immemorial stability of the oriental civilizations. But is stability worth purchasing at such a price to the individual? I personally would rather run the risk of living in an excessively unstable society, like that of the modern West, than live in the midst of an indissolubly united family in an indestructible society like those of the East.

"Nobody who has not lived in a Latin country, or at least paid a visit to the Orient," continues the writer in "Vanity Fair," can from any idea of what the family can be. Not for generations have English and America beheld anything like a really united family of the Latin kind. Not for centuries, perhaps never, have they known anything to compare with the families of India or China. We may be thankful. I am, at any rate. Remembering those vast Italian palaces, peopled by the direct descendants and all the collateral, three or four generations of them, of some ducal patriarch or patriarchess, surviving almost fossilized at the centre of the hive, I thank the Lord that I was born in a country whose people have long since repudiated the divine right of aunts and cousins, who have revolted against the tyranny of grandfathers and abolished the feudal privilege of great-uncles and mothers-in-law.

"Latin countries it is still the right and the duty of all these connections by blood and marriage to interfere in one's private affairs. In the Anglo-Saxon world a man is not through particularly reprehensible or even particularly eccentric if he never goes near his relations from one year's end to another. In the Latin countries such a man would not be well thought of. In the East he would be considered a monster."

THE WORLD'S GREATEST

Dr. Will Durant, famous author of "The Story of Philosophy," has named as the world's greatest thinkers the following great philosophers and scientists: Plato, Aristotle, Spinoza, Copernicus, Francis Bacon, Newton, Kant, Voltaire, Confucius and Darwin.

Yet those who overturned ancient institutions of government and created better governments in their place, may have affected human welfare more than even the great scientists and philosophers, whose work Dr. Durant rightly finds has been so magnificent.

Viewed from this point of view, several of our greatest Americans, including George Washington, and very likely Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, should be included in such a list. The greatest thinkers are not merely those who define the abstractions of philosophy, but those who think out better ways for regulating human affairs.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

HOW ABOUT THE WAR?

It is now ten years since the close of the World War. America and Europe are at last getting their hats on straight and have come to the place where they can at last look about and measure the rewards and penalties of that great conflict. They are at last beginning to see things in reasonable perspective. Is it not a sound conclusion to say that the war was an insane outbreak, that its evil results were vastly greater than its good results, and that it did nothing worth while for the world?

HOW LONG WILL YOU LIVE

Dr. Glover, at the head of the department of mathematics of the University of Illinois, says the outstanding unsolved problem of the human race is the problem of increasing the span of human life. The average lifetime of those born now will be about 55 years. But that is not really as hopeful as it sounds. Heart disease and those other diseases which are brought on by unrest and the ceaseless activity of modern mental life are not being eliminated. The attack on middle age is increasing. Men are paying the penalty in greater numbers than ever for their inattention to rest and relaxation.

NOT MERE TALK

Prevention of the reproduction of the unfit is not a mere hope or theory. Perhaps it is not generally known that the state of California has been practicing sterilization in its state institutions since 1909. In that time about 5,000 operations have been performed. Four-fifths of these were in hospitals for the insane, and one-fifth in the state home for feeble-minded.

It is too bad the human mind works so slowly that few other states have been sufficiently convinced of the need of this practical procedure.

QUILL PENS

Many young men and women who think they can write and who would like to write, put off real work because they dislike the manual toil that writing demands. Even the most modern and smooth running typewriter becomes a wearisome machine. Pushing a pencil or a pen is even more tiresome. Few can dictate as well as they can write, even if they can afford the luxury of a secretary. What is needed, in the face of such trifling discouragements, is more downright energy and less laziness.

Remember that Charles Dickens once wrote a whole book with a single quill pen. But Dickens did not suffer from the commonest complaint of the young person—mental indolence.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, May 29. —Variegated notes of a reporter covering the biggest beat in the world.

A phonograph record, Alma Gluck made in 1914, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," has earned her more than $130,000 in royalties. Sales have dropped off as radio's popularity has increased.

Thornton Wilder, author of the prize novel, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," has contracts for everything he will write in the next five years, but hasn't any idea what his next novel will be about. He writes very slowly. He was at work on "The Bridges" three years.

Florenz Ziegfeld complains about the cost of silk tights, but gives scrubwomen $50 goldpieces for eating lunch in a cafeteria, but insists on taking his own poultry when sailing to Europe. He likes perfumes and prize fights.

George M. Cohan's ambition is to write a full-length play in one act. He doesn't like intermissions in shows.

William F. Kenna, friend of Al Smith, and financial backer of the governor's presidential campaign, was one of 17 children. Seven are alive, and five of them work for him.

Paul, son of Harold Bell Wright, novelist, is a Broadway actor.

The "Sash Weight Club," composed of newspapermen and women who reported the Snyder-Gray murder trial, holds periodic social meetings in a restaurant near the courthouse where the trial took place.

"A fireman is of more value to the world than a policeman," says Edward O'Neill, who resigned as a New York cop to become a fire fighter.

The way to get Captain Harold A. Cunningham, master of the S. S. Leviathan, interested in a conversation, is to inject locomotives as a subject. They're his enthusiasm. When he is in port he goes out where he can see them, and if possible, take a ride. One of his closest friends is John Draney, engineer on the Lackawanna, out of Hoboken, N. J., and he obtains official permission and dons overalls to ride with Draney in the cab.

I have found that my knowledge and love of locomotives, which is extensive because I am the son of an engineer, is shared by many notables. Gigli, the Metropolitan tenor, haunts railroad yards. Edward N. Hurley, the former chairman of the shipping board, is a locomotive enthusiast. Daniel Willard, president of the B and O, likes to try out all the new monsters built for that road. Mayor Jimmy Walker, of New York, realized of lifelong ambitions not long ago when he was allowed to handle the throttle of a locomotive for a short distance. Carl Sandberg, the poet, is a locomotive lover. So is H. L. Mencken, the critic.

Why Your Dog Wags His Tail

Everybody knows that a dog wags his tail when glad to see his master—but why? Why does he express his joy by flopping his ears in some other way? Why should he employ his tail to indicate happiness?

My young son once went even further in wondering and asked: "Does Badger (our old dog) wag his tail without thinking about it or does he say to himself, 'Well, I guess I'll wag my tail awhile'?"

That is a sensible question, and may clear up other things that dogs' human associates have pondered over.

To understand our dogs, we two-legged folk must remember that dogs get most of their traits from savage ancestors—wolves, jackals, and the like, and possibly from Australian dingoes.

A few naturalists doubt that dogs are descended from wolves or jackals, but hold that they are from a strictly canine species now extinct. However, the wolf and jackal theory is plausible enough for present purposes.

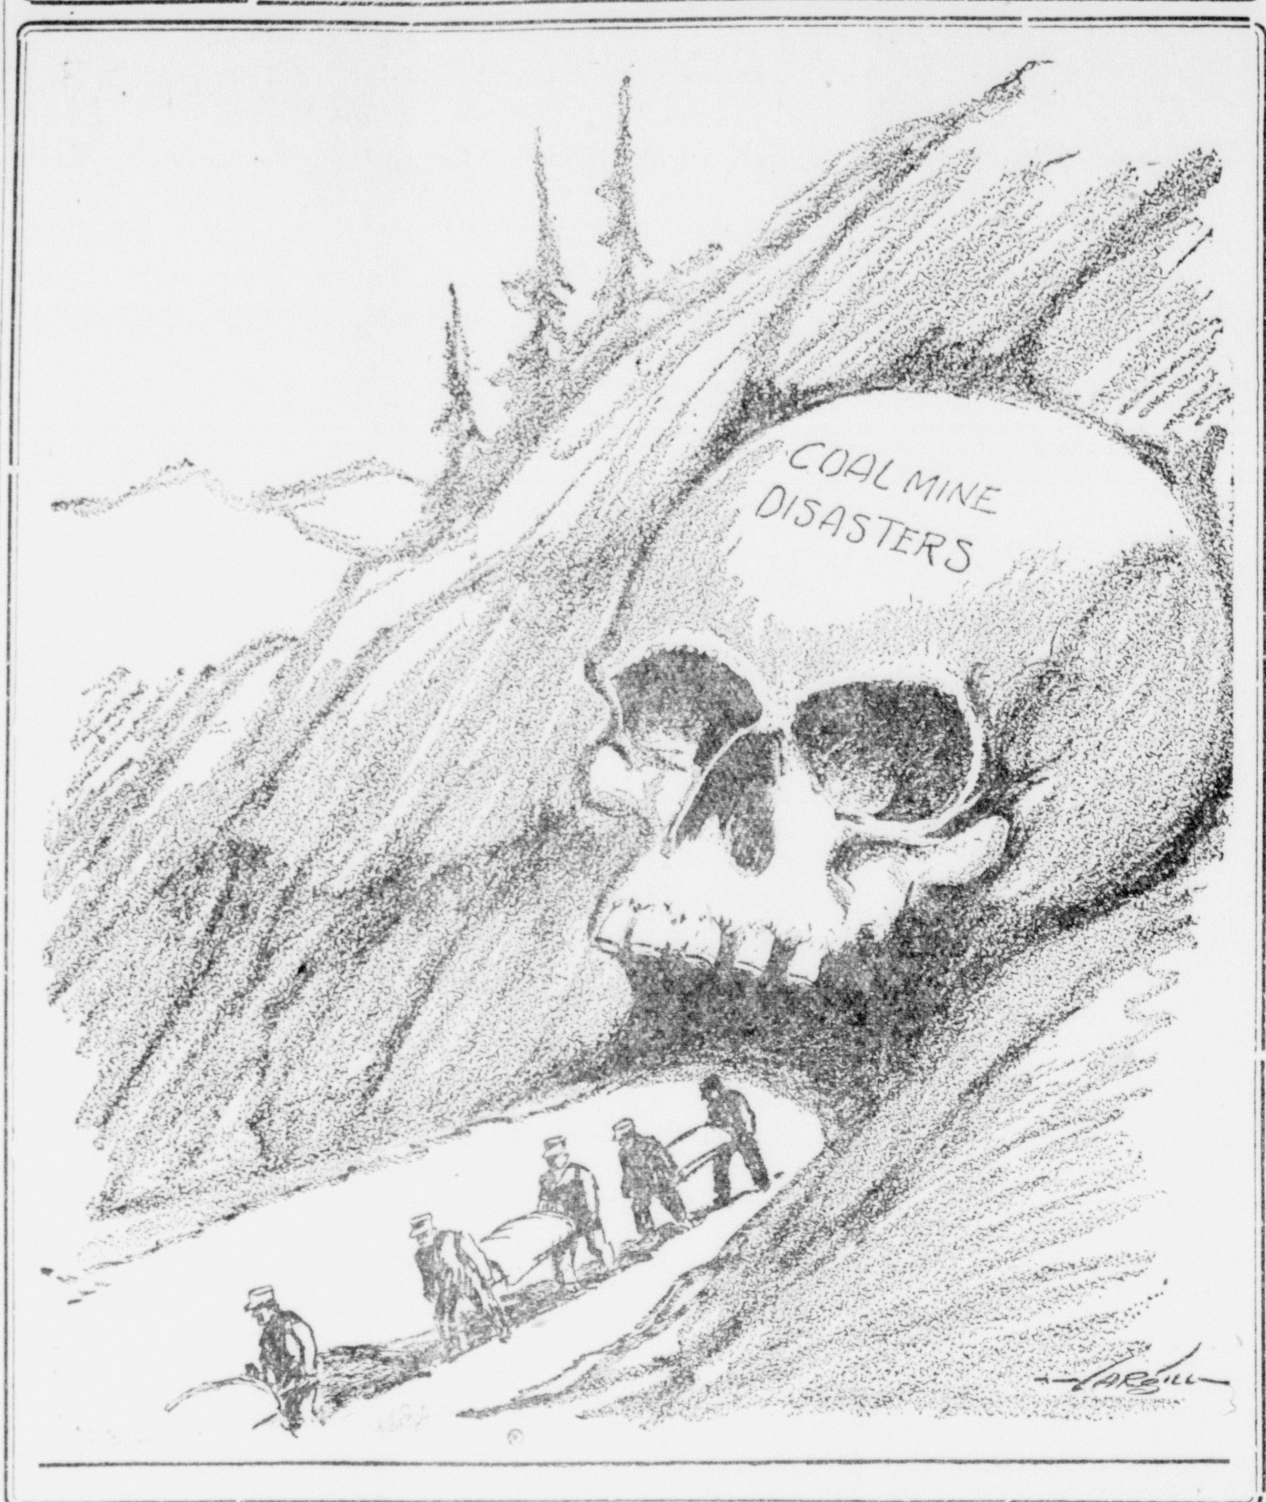

In their wild state, dogs had to work in packs, because the food problem was often serious, and they had to attack larger animals than it would have been possible for any one to kill if he had gone on his own hook, after when hunting, dogs do not mew to other cats, because a cat has the manner of a cat. A cat, never learned to co-operate, and does not expect to give or receive help.

To work together effectively, those wild forebears of our own dogs had to have signals. Most important of these was their bark, to call the rest of the pack together. Whenever one caught a scent of game, a few loud barks brought other dogs.

But the bark wasn't the dogs' only signal. There were times when a bark would have scared the game away before the whole pack could arrive on the trail. It was necessary, then, to have a silent signal. For this a dog's tail was handy contrivance. When on the scent of game, a wise dog wags his tail as rapidly as possible. He doesn't give much thought to this, but simply follows instincts inherited from early kinkfolk.

I suppose somebody is saying now: "Yes, but what's all this got to do with a dog wagging his tail when glad to see his master?" The point is that dogs first got into the habit of wagging their tails when on the chase. In the old days—even yet, for that matter—the chase was the

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Beauty of a Gentle Voice.

Do you remember, when we were very young, a most fascinating fairy tale of two pretty maidens who were wooed by a gallant prince? The prince, of course, was beautiful and he had a hard time choosing, until one of them opened her mouth, and from out her pretty lips came all manners of horrible things, frogs and toads and everything ugly. And then from her sister's mouth (a stepmother I'm sure, Fairy Tales have a way of constraining stepmothers) came pieces of silver and pieces of gold.

Of course our prince married the walking mint (who wouldn't?) and together they probably rebuilt the kingdom and opened schools for the cultivation of soft and gentle voices. Which as many a man will testify, is "an excellent thing in woman." That fairy tale made a tremendous impression on me, for I remember my mother explaining how pretty voices and gentle voices were liquid silver that poured from the lips of lovely little girls, and that quarrelling and bickering and harsh, raucous voices, or mean, whining ones, were the toads that could disfigure the most beautiful mouth in the world, and turn all the fairy princess away in disgust. The Voice of Beauty speaks in gentle modulated tones, and with a clear diction. The Voice of Beauty is measured, it never runs away with itself, hurrying words at a terrific rate in the ears of the bewildered listener. The Voice of Beauty is clear and understandable. It depends on lips, tongue, hard and soft palate for clear articulation. And it tries to avoid the slang phrases of the day, the conversation just like every other girl's it tries to learn certain things about the world we live in, so that behind the words there is evidenced clear-thinking, and a nodding acquaintance at least with current events.

Cultivate the Voice of Beauty. Catch yourself when somebody else raises an ill-mannered voice, and answer with the "soft words that turn away wrath." Learn to become ashamed of the impulse to shout and shriek that rises in you when you are angered, and above everything else learn to control it. Quarrelling is not only unbecoming, it is distressingly common and bad mannered.

The man with a reserved, controlled voice, can dominate a shrieking mob. His quiet tones are ten times more effective than the riotous soap box orator, for after all we have all heard that the empty vessel makes the greatest sound!

Learn to talk, to pronounce words and to understand them, for understanding them you will grow to love them, to select the ones which express your thoughts clearly, concisely and beautifully. You will find that the world puts more faith in a quiet man than in a shout!

Cultivate a lovely voice. It is an integral part of beauty.

Answers to Mothers' Behavior Patterns

"Junior is nervous and irritable and underweight. He comes rightfully enough by it, though; I'm just the same," or "father is just the same," or "his grandfather is just the same." I have written this to me very often.

Now there is no doubt that undesirable character tendencies (as well as the desirable) are inherited, and there is no doubt that undernourishment and other physical disorders will produce them. But there is no doubt, also, that there are two other very important factors in the production of undesirable traits in babyhood and childhood which may extend throughout life; and these other factors I want you, mothers and fathers, to give more attention to.

They are these: 1. The behavior pattern which you allow the baby to develop, and 2, the most fun they had. It meant matching wits with other animals, exhilarating exercise, and best of all, hope of a good dinner.

While many modern dogs still pursue game for the game itself, many more do just for fun. The most eager foxhounds often show not the slightest interest in the fox, once it has been captured.

At any rate, dogs early got tailwagging identified with some thing pleasant. This idea became so deeply implanted in their little doggie minds that now they wag their tails when joyful no matter what about, whether from thoughts of chasing arabit or of seeing somebody they love.

behavior pattern you yourselves present to the child.

Mothers and fathers should think as much about these as they do of the health and comfort of the baby.

The First Pattern: Does the baby find that by crying lustily enough he will be taken up? He is too young to be taught anything? You must wait until he is older? Be careful of that.

The day you think he is old enough to be taught, you may find that bad habits are already a part of his make-up.

As he grows older, has he found that tantrums, screaming, rolling on the floor, and such didos bring him what he wants after his requests have been refused? He has established a pattern now of behavior which he is smart enough to use whenever his wishes are opposed.

Now, if in the beginning, he finds that he can't have his way after bad behavior, but that he can by good behavior, he is going to get a desirable pattern of behavior instead of an undesirable one.

The Second Pattern: Not only are bad patterns of behavior formed by his methods of getting his wishes, but they are also formed by the habits of those around him. For a child is a great imitator. His likes and dislikes, his ambitions and tastes which in latter years become crystallized into character traits, are molded to a great extent by those around him. He can learn to be nervous and pailfully in the presence of an emergency, or he can learn calmness and poise. For it is true that as the twig is bent, the tree is inclined.

Today's Recipes

Vegetable Goulash—One cup cold cooked rice, one can red kidney beans, one cup diced carrots, on sweet green pepper, two cups strained canned tomatoes, one large onion, one-fourth pound fresh mushrooms, sauted in butter, two teaspoons butter, two teaspoons salt, pepper, paprika and cayenne to taste.

Put butter in frying pan and finely sliced onion. Cook until onion is straw color. Add tomatoes and let come to boil. Add diced carrots, which have been previously cooked in a little salted water, then add rice and beans, salt, pepper, paprika or chili powder and a dash of cayenne. Cover and let simmer for about five minutes. Arrange mixture on deep hot platter and sprinkle sauted mushrooms on top.

Rubarb and Banana Pie — Dissolve lemon gelatin in taste. Boil water and add to rubarb. Stir until dissolved and set aside to cool. When beginning to set, mix bananas in lightly, being careful not to mash them. Turn into baked crust and let harden. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened with confectioners sugar.

Wash, peel and cut up rubarb and cook in as little water as possible. Sweeten to taste. Dissolve lemon gelatin in hot water and add to rubarb. Stir until dissolved and set aside to cool. When beginning to set, mix bananas in lightly, being careful not to mash them. Turn into baked crust and let harden. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened with confectioners sugar.

Hare Lip and Cleft Palate.—Mrs. P.—Have my and cleft palate are due to the failure of the structures which form the lower part of the face to unite. They are NOT due to marking by the mother. The unlikelyhood of that being shown in that the failure of development occurs very early, sometimes before the mother is sure of pregnancy. It is not known what causes it, but it may be hereditary; that is, there may be a similar defect in the parents or some of the forebears which is transmissible.

These malformations are very successfully operated upon, the time of operation depending upon the case—from the age of three months to one year. Stone states that the chance of more than one child being born in the same family with this defect, is slight. Your second baby may be entirely free of this defect, Mrs. P.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Wyoming Democracy's vice presidential endorsement of ex-Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross the other day was only a polite gesture, insofar as the Houston convention in June's concerned.

But how about four years hence? Mayn't some state come to the front in 1932 with a "favorite daughter" candidate who'll demand a place on one of the major party tickets sure enough?

Plenty of political forecasters are to be found in Washington who don't mind saying it wouldn't surprise 'em a bit.

Women prominently identified with public life, in its various manifestations at the national level, have been saying for quite a while that our first "presidentess" probably will break in to the White House finally via the vice presidential route.

Now we have such a nomination suggested in so many words. It was rather vaguely hinted at in Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's favor, at a woman's meeting at the Iowa State fair in Des Moines a number of months ago. Wyoming puts it in regular official form in Mrs. Ross's behalf.

The honest fact is that it wouldn't require much of a stretch of the imagination to conceive of the plan's adoption this very time—if politicians weren't the notorious cowards they are.

A good many of them generally believe the party which had the nerve to try it would make a great hit.

Not that they'll do it—not yet. The hour hasn't quite struck. The managers look at one another questioningly—and then they look scared—and after that the subject's dropped, without actually having been referred to out loud at all. But, it will be, sooner or later. It's simmering in the back of a whole lot of political heads.

The sticker lies in the possibility of a mid-term White House vacancy.

Ultimately that will have to be risked.

Otherwise either of the big parties would be perfectly willing to spare the vice presidency to a woman.

It isn't a nomination the managers put a high value on. A big he-politician doesn't want it. He wants the presidency. Rubbed off with the consolation prize, he not only isn't satisfied—he's sore. So are his friends.

The man who does fight for it is sized up as second class. The chap it goes to seldom adds appreciably to his running mate's strength. Of course the theory is that he's picked with a view to accomplishing just that, but it's well recognized that it infrequently works out that way in practice.

In short, the vice presidential nomination generally is regarded as having gone largely to waste hitherto—a kind of convention by-product which the captains of the political industry never have been able to utilize to much account.

Now, suddenly, they begin to sense a market value for it.

With a woman candidate—see whillikins!—maybe the second place on the ticket wouldn't be worth its weight in gold!

What might happen after about the 'steenth time, when the electorate had begun to get used to it?—perhaps that would be different—but it's hard to think of it as meaning anything but a landslide, if not for novelty's sake, first off.

It certainly would be a whole of a stunt, however it turned out.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The Girl With a "Past"

Are girls more sensitive to their sins than men? Are their consciences more tender? Apparently so. For I have had several letters from girls who made mistakes when they were young and who feel they cannot enter the "holy state of matrimony" without telling the men they love about them. I never have had one from a young man asking me the same question, however.

Remember this, you girls, who think it is "smart" to be a "fast." Sometime you will meet the one and only man and will want to feel that you are clean, body and soul, to be his wife and the mother of his children.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl still in my teens, and have been going with a young man several years now. He is very much in love with me and I like him real well, but when I was quite a little girl I made several mistakes. Should I tell him before I consent to marry him, or just let it pass? There was several years ago and I am all right now. Please answer this letter, Mrs. Lee, as I do not know what to do. Blue Eyes."

If you can forget about it, I think I would, Blue Eyes. You must have been very young when you made the mistakes you speak of.

"Marion" writes: "Dear Mrs. Lee: I have a boy friend that I like very much and he has told me many times that he loves me. He has a job where he works sometimes at night. When he is off he always comes up to see me, and when he is working he always calls me up. When he is off he seems so nice. When he is working he seems so blue, and when I ask him something he just stays silent. Will you please tell me why he should act like that? Marion."

I'd have to guess at the reasons, Marion. Possibly he is not happy in this work and is tired. Ask him sometime when he is in a happy mood, and he'll probably tell you how he feels.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a young man for a year, but he is 34 and I am only 18. He is true to me as gold, but my friends think he is much too old. I am asking for your advice. "Just Martha."

You yourself are the only one to know about that, Martha. If you love him and are happy in his company the difference in your ages may not be too much. You must remember, however, that 16 years is a good deal of difference. When you are 30, for instance, he will be 45. Better wait a year or two before you wed.

Peter's Adventure

The Big Sneak Thief

When Bobolink had finished telling his story, Peter drew a long breath.

"Now, Walter the Bald Eagle has been chosen as the national bird of America when it will do things like that," said he. "I shall never hear of one again without thinking of what you have just told me."

Mrs. Gray Rabbit sighed, and snuggled her little son closer. "I love you very much, Sonny-Bunny, but I don't know whether I should ever be brave enough to run right into a fire or not," said she. But Sonny-Bunny knew better.

"Oh, yes, you would, mumsy, if I was there," said he, in a confident tone. "But don't shiver like that. I am not going to be there. Catch me getting caught in the flames. I can hop too fast for that. Say, Mr. Robert O'Lincoln, do you know any more stories about Eagles that are not so scary? That last one made my fur rise on my back!"

Mr. Bobolink twittered. "That was a sad story, wasn't it?" asked he. "Now let me think. Yes I do know one more. Shall I tell you about the eagle that got his feet frozen in the ice?"

"Oh do!" cried the boy.

"Dit he got them out?" asked Sonny-Bunny.

"What was he doing?" questioned Mrs. Gray Rabbit.

"Two questions at once," declared Bobolink. "I see that in order to answer them I shall have to tell quite a story. Here goes.

One upon a time—nobody knows how long ago—some say almost a hundred years, a tiny egret was hatched high upon a rocky cliff. He grew and grew until finally there was no eagle so strong nor so brave in all the region. No swan could escape him. The moment that he heard the trumpet call of the beautiful white bird he left his perch and like a shooting star, plunged from the air towards her. Double and duck and twist as the poor swan may have, sooner or later she fell a victim to his terrible stroke.

"That Eagle learned to fish but he didn't like the sport very well, so he robbed other fishermen of their spoils.

"When his own cousin, Osprey, who was a clever fisherman, had made a good catch and was carrying it home, Eagle would swoop upon him, strike him in the wing and scare him so that the poor fellow would drop the fish and fly. Long before the fish fell to the waves far below, Eagle would have caught it and have flown off home, where he and the family would have a good feast. He thought this a lot easier than going fishing himself and getting his feet all wet.

"But one bitter day like all thieves, he paid the penalty of being so lazy and so greedy. After a long morning of watchful waiting Cousin Osprey had caught a fine fat duck and was making off with it when Eagle discovered him and as usual decided to steal it away.

"But this time Osprey determined not to give it up without a struggle. Eagle, however, was the stronger and at last Osprey had to let his selfish cousin have the catch he had worked so hard for, and go home empty-mouthed and no doubt Osprey felt badly to think his own wife and children would have to go hungry while his greedy cousin's family ate their fill."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

MAN AND HIS FELLOW MORTAL — A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast; but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.—Prov. 12:10.

FAMILY TYRANNY

Among the greatest of our Anglo-Saxon blessings is the fact that family is a declining institution in the opinion of Aldous Huxley, the English essayist. According to Mr. Huxley the Anglo-Saxons have come more nearly to abolishing the family than any other civilized race and, he thinks, we are congratulated for it.

"Ancestor worship and the family system," he says, "are certainly responsible for the immemorial stability of the oriental civilizations. But is stability worth purchasing at such a price to the individual? I personally would rather run the risk of living in an excessively unstable society, like that of the modern West, than live in the midst of an indissolubly united family in an indestructible society like those of the East."

"Nobody who has not lived in a Latin country, or at least paid a visit to the Orient," continues the writer in "Vanity Fair," can from any idea of what the family can be. Not for generations have English and America beheld anything like a really united family of the Latin kind. Not for centuries, perhaps never, have they known anything to compare with the families of India or China. We may be thankful. I am, at any rate. Remembering those vast Italian palaces, peopled by the direct descendants and all the collateral, three or four generations of them, of some ducal patriarch or patriarchess, surviving almost fossilized at the centre of the hive, I think the Lord that I was born in a country whose people have long since repudiated the divine right of aunts and cousins, who have revolted against the tyranny of grandfathers and abolished the feudal privilege of great-uncles and mothers-in-law.

"Latin countries it is still the right and the duty of all these connections by blood and marriage to interfere in one's private affairs. In the Anglo-Saxon world a man is not through particularly reprehensible or even particularly eccentric if he never goes near his relations from one year's end to another. In the Latin countries such a man would not be well thought of. In the East he would be considered a monster."

THE WORLD'S GREATEST

Dr. Will Durant, famous author of "The Story of Philosophy," has named as the world's greatest thinkers the following great philosophers and scientists: Plato, Aristotle, Spinoza, Copernicus, Francis Bacon, Newton, Kant, Voltaire, Comenius and Darwin.

Let those who overturned ancient institutions of government and created better governments in their place, may have suffered human welfare more than even the great scientists and philosophers, whose work Dr. Durant rightly finds has been so magnificent.

Viewed from this point of view, several of our greatest Americans, including George Washington, and very likely Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, should be included in such a list. The greatest thinkers are not merely those who define the abstractions of philosophy, but those who think out better ways for regulating human affairs.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

HOW ABOUT THE WAR?

It is now ten years since the close of the World War. America and Europe are at last getting their hats on straight and have come to the place where they can at last look about and measure the rewards and penalties of that great conflict. They are at last beginning to see things in reasonable perspective. Is it not a sound conclusion to say that the war was an insane outbreak, that its evil results were vastly greater than its good results, and that it did nothing worth while for the world?

HOW LONG WILL YOU LIVE

Dr. Glover, at the head of the department of mathematics of the University of Illinois, says the outstanding unsolved problem of the human race is the problem of increasing the span of human life. The average lifetime of those born now will be about 55 years. But that is not really as hopeful as it sounds. Heart disease and other diseases which are brought on by unrest and the ceaseless activity of modern mental life are not being eliminated. The attack on middle age is increasing. Men are paying the penalty in greater numbers than ever for their inattention to rest and relaxation.

NOT MERE TALK

Prevention of the reproduction of the unfit is not a mere hope or theory. Perhaps it is not generally known that the state of California has been practicing sterilization in its state institutions since 1909. In that time about 5,000 operations have been performed. Four-fifths of these were in hospitals for the insane, and one-fifth in the state home for feeble-minded.

It is too bad the human mind works so slowly that few other states have been sufficiently convinced of the need of this practical procedure.

QUILL PENS

Many young men and women who think they can write and who would like to write, put off real work because they dislike the manual toil that writing demands. Even the most modern and smooth running typewriter becomes a wearisome machine. Pushing a pencil or a pen is even more tiresome. Few can dictate as well as they can write, even if they can afford the luxury of a secretary. What is needed, in the face of such trifling discouragements, is more downright energy and less laziness.

Remember that Charles Dickens once wrote a whole book with a single quill pen. But Dickens did not suffer from the commonest complaint of the young person—mental indolence.

It tries to learn certain things about the world we live in, so that behind the words there is evidenced clear-thinking, and a nodding acquaintance at least with current events.

Cultivate the Voice of Beauty. Catch yourself when somebody else raises an ill-mannered voice, and answer with the "soft" words that turneth away wrath. Learn to become ashamed of the impulse to shout and shriek that rises in you when you are angered, and above everything else learn to control it. Quarreling is not only unbecoming, it is distressingly common and bad mannered.

The man with a reserved, controlled voice, can dominate a shrieking mob. His quiet tones are ten times more effective than the riotous soap box orator, for after all we have all heard that the empty vessel makes the greatest sound!

Learn to talk, to pronounce words and to understand them, for understanding them you will grow to love them, to select the ones which express your thoughts clearly, concisely and beautifully. You will find that the world puts more faith in a quiet man than in a shout.

Cultivate a lovely voice. It is an integral part of beauty.

Answers to Mothers' Behavior Patterns

"Junior is nervous and irritable and underweight. He comes rightfully enough by it, though; I'm just the same," or "father is just the same," or "his grandfather is just the same." I have this written to me very often.

Now there is no doubt that undesirable character tendencies (as well as the desirable) can be inherited, and there is no doubt that undernourishment and other physical disorders will produce them. But there is no doubt, also, that there are two other very potent factors in the production of undesirable traits in babyhood and childhood which may extend throughout life; and these other factors I want you, mothers and fathers, to give more attention to.

They are these: 1. The behavior pattern which you allow the baby to develop, and 2. the most fun they had. It meant matching wits with other animals, exhilarating exercise, and best of all, hope of a good dinner.

While many modern dogs still pursue game for the game itself, many more do just for fun. The most eager foxhounds often show not the slightest interest in the fox, once it has been captured.

At any rate, dogs rarely get tailwagging identified with something pleasant. This idea became so deeply implanted in their little doggie minds that now they wag their tails when joyful no matter what about, whether from thoughts of chasing a rabbit or of seeing somebody they love.

behavior pattern you yourselves present to the child.

Mothers and fathers should think as much about these as they do of the health and comfort of the baby.

The First Pattern: Does the baby find that by crying lustily enough he will be taken up? He is too young to be taught anything? You must wait until he is older? Be careful of that. The day you think he is old enough to be taught, you may find that bad habits are already a part of his make-up.

As he grows older, has he found that tantrums, screaming, rolling on the floor, and such things bring him what he wants after his requests have been refused? He has established a pattern now of behavior which he is smart enough to use whenever his wishes are opposed.

Now, if in the beginning, he finds that he can't have his way after bad behavior, but that he can by good behavior, he is going to get a desirable pattern of behavior instead of an undesirable one.

The Second Pattern: Not only are bad patterns of behavior formed by his methods of getting his wishes, but they are also formed by the habits of those around him. For a child is a great imitator. His likes and dislikes, his ambitions and tastes which in latter years become crystallized into character traits, are molded to a great extent by those around him. He can learn to be nervous and panicky in the presence of an emergency, or he can learn calmness and poise.

For it is true that as the twig is bent, the tree is inclined. These points I have brought

MENU HINT

In today's recipes I include one for vegetable goulash. The ingredients for this may be varied according to your larder and ingenuity. The rhubarb and banana pie recipe should be filed for use in winter when your canned rhubarb can be used.

Vegetable

Vegetable Goulash: One cup cold cooked rice, one can red kidney beans, one cup diced carrots, on sweet green pepper, two cups strained canned tomatoes, one large onion, one-fourth pound fresh mushrooms, sautéed in butter, two teaspoons butter, two teaspoons salt, pepper, paprika and cayenne to taste.

Put butter in frying pan and finely sliced onion. Cook until onion is straw color. Add tomatoes and let come to boil. Add diced carrots, which have been previously cooked in a little salted water, then add rice and beans, salt, pepper, paprika or chili powder and a dash of cayenne. Cover and let simmer for about five minutes. Arrange mixture on deep hot platter and sprinkle sautéed mushrooms on top.

Rhubarb and Banana Pie — Sweetened rhubarb, one package lemon gelatin, one-third cup hot water, one cup sliced bananas, one cup whipping cream, two tablespoons confectioners sugar, baked pie crusts. Wash, peel and cut up rhubarb and cook in as little water as possible. Sweeten to taste. Dissolve lemon gelatin in hot water and add to rhubarb. Stir until dissolved and set aside to cool. When beginning to set, mix bananas in lightly, being careful not to mash them. Turn into baked crust and let harden. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened with confectioners sugar.

out are well known to all students of child psychology, but I owe the thought for this article to Dr. Richard H. Hutchings, Supt. of the Utah State Hospital, who broadcast a talk on behavior patterns not long ago. I hope very many of you heard him and are already profiting by his advice.

Have Lip and Cleft Palate. Mrs. P. — Have lip and cleft palate are due to the failure of the structures which form the lower part of the face to unite. They are NOT due to marking by the mother. The unlikelyhood of that being shown in that the failure of development occurs very early in life, before the mother is sure of pregnancy. It is not known what causes it, but it may be hereditary; that is, there may be a similar defect in the parents or some of the forebears which is transmissible.

These malformations are very successfully operated upon, the time of operation depending upon the case—from the age of three months to one year. Stone states that the chance of more than one child being born in the same family with this defect is slight. Your second baby may be entirely free of this defect, Mrs. P.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Wyoming Democracy's vice presidential endorsement of ex-Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross the other day was only a polite gesture, insofar as the Houston convention in June's concerned.

But how about four years hence? Mayn't some state come to the front in 1932 with a "favorite daughter" candidate who'll demand a place on one of the major party tickets sure enough?

Plethora of political forecasters are to be found in Washington who don't mind saying it wouldn't surprise 'em a bit.

Women prominently identified with public life, in its various manifestations at the national level, have been saying for quite a while that our first "presidential" probably will break into the White House finally via the vice presidential route.

Now we have such a nomination suggested in so many words. It was rather vaguely hinted at in Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's favor, at a woman's meeting at the Iowa State fair in Des Moines a number of months ago. Wyoming puts it in regular official form in Mrs. Ross' behalf.

The honest fact is that it wouldn't require much of a stretch of the imagination to conceive of the plan's adoption this very time. If politicians weren't the notorious cowards they are.

A good many of them genuinely believe the party which had the nerve to try it would make a great hit.

Not that they'd do it — not yet. The hour hasn't quite struck. The muckers look at one another questioningly, and then they look scared—and after that the subject's dropped, without actually having been referred to out loud at all. But it will be, sooner or later. It's simmering in the back of a whole lot of political heads.

The stikker lies in the possibility of a mid-term White House vacancy. Ultimately that will have to be risked.

Otherwise either of the big parties would be perfectly willing to spare the vice presidency to a woman.

It isn't a nomination the managers put a high value on. A big Republican doesn't want it. He wants the presidency. Fubbed off with the consolation prize, he not only isn't satisfied—he's sore. So are his friends.

The man who does fight for it is sized up as second class. The chap it goes to seldom adds appreciably to his running mate's strength. Of course the theory is that he's picked with a view to accomplishing just that, but it's well recognized that it infrequently works out that way in practice.

In short, the vice presidential nomination generally is regarded as having gone largely to waste hitherto—a kind of convention by-product which the captains of the political industry never have been able to utilize to such advantage.

Now, suddenly, they begin to sense a market value for it.

With a woman candidate!—gee whillikins!—maybe the second place on the ticket wouldn't be worth its weight in gold? What might happen after about the 'tenth year, when the electorate had begun to get used to it? Perhaps that would be different—but it's hard to think of it as meaning anything but a landslide, if only for novelty's sake, first off.

It certainly would be a whale of a stunt, however it turned out.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The Girl With a "Past"

Are girls more sensitive to their sins than men? Are their consciences more tender? Apparently so, for I have had several letters from girls who made mistakes when they were young and who feel they cannot enter the "holy state of matrimony" without telling the men they love about them. I never have had one from a young man asking me the same question, however.

Remember this, you girls, who think it is "smart" to tell "fast." Sometime you will meet the one and only man who will want to feel that you are clean, body and soul, to be his wife and the mother of his children.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl still in my teens, and have been going with a young man several years. My senior for over a year now. He is very much in love with me and I like him real well, but when I was quite a little girl I made several mistakes. Should I tell him before I consent to marry him, or just let it pass? That was several years ago and I am all right now. Please answer this letter, Mrs. Lee, as I do not know what to do. Blue Eyes."

If you can forget about it, I think I would, Blue Eyes. You must have been very young when you made the mistakes you speak of.

"Marion" writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have a boy friend that I like very much and he has told me many times that he loves me. He has a job where he works sometimes at night. When he is off he always comes up to see me, and when he is working he always calls me up. When he is off he seems so nice. When he is working he seems so blue, and when I ask him something he just stays silent. Will you please tell me why he should act like that?"

I'd have to guess at the reasons, Marion. Possibly he is not happy in this work and is tired. Ask him sometime when he is in a happy mood, and he'll probably tell you how he feels.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a young man for a year, but he is 34 and I am only 18. He is true to me as gold, but my friends think he is much too old. I am asking for your advice. Just Martha."

You yourself are the only one to know about that, Martha. If you love him and are happy in his company the difference in your ages may not be too much. You must remember, however, that 16 years is a good deal of difference. When you are 30, for instance, he will be 45. Better wait a year or two before you wed.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

The Big Sneak Thief

When Bobbink had finished telling his story, Peter drew a long breath.

"No wonder the Bald Eagle has been chosen as the national bird of America when it will do things like that," said he. "I shall never hear of one again without thinking of what you have just told me."

Mrs. Gray Rabbit sighed, and snuggled her little son, Sonny-Bunny, but I don't know whether I should ever be brave enough to run right into a fire or not," said she. But Sonny-Bunny knew better.

"Oh, yes, you would, mumsy, if I was there," said he, in a confident tone. "But don't shiver like that. I am not going to be there. Catch me getting caught in the flames. I can hop too fast for that. Say, Mr. Robert O'Lincoln, do you know any more stories about Eagles that are not so scary? That last one made my fur rise on my back!"

Mr. Bobbink twittered. "That was a sad story, wasn't it?" asked he. "Now let me think. Yes I do know one more. Shall I tell you about the eagle that got his feet frozen in the ice?"

"Oh do," cried the boy.

"Did he get them out?" asked Sonny-Bunny.

"What was he doing?" questioned Mrs. Gray Rabbit.

"Two questions at once," declared Bobbink. "I see that in order to answer them I shall have to tell quite a story. Here goes."

"Once upon a time — nobody knows how long ago — some say almost a hundred years, a tiny eaglet was hatched high upon a rocky cliff. He grew and grew until finally there was no eagle so strong nor so brave in all the region. No swan could escape him. The moment that the beautiful white bird he left his perch and like a shooting star, plunged from the air to things like that," said he. "I shall never hear of one again without thinking of what you have just told me."

"That Eagle learned to fish, but he didn't like the sport very well, so he robbed other fishermen of their spoils."

"When his own cousin, Osprey, who was a clever fisherman, had made a good catch and was carrying it home, Eagle would swoop upon him, strike him in the wing and scare him so that the poor fellow would drop the fish and fly. Long before the fish fell to the waves far below, Eagle would have caught it and have flown off home, where he and the family would have a good feast. He thought this a lot easier than going fishing him self and getting his feet all wet."

"But one bitter day, like all thieves, he paid the penalty of being so lazy and so greedy. After a long morning of watchful waiting Cousin Osprey had caught a fine fat duck and was making off with it when Eagle discovered him and as usual decided to steal it away."

"But this time Osprey determined not to give it up without a struggle. Eagle, however, was the stronger and at last Osprey had to let his selfish cousin have the catch he had worked so hard for, and go home empty-mouthed and no doubt Osprey felt badly to think his own wife and child, who would have to go hungry while his greedy cousin's family ate their fill."

SPRINGFIELD TEAM TO FURNISH OPPOSITION ON HOLIDAY BILL

The Springfield A. I. U. baseball team will furnish the opposition against the Reserves in a Memorial Day game at Washington Park Wednesday afternoon. Play will be called at 3 o'clock.

DAYTON RIVERDALE TEAM BLANKS XENIA QUOT TOSSERS 7-0

Passing from the sublime to the ridiculous, as it were, the Xenia Quoit Club, after blanking the Dayton Shrine Club last week, was in turn whitewashed by the Riverdale team, 7 to 0 in a Miami Valley Quoit League match at Dayton Monday night.

Riverdale won every game by healthy margins and received an extra, seventh game as a bonus for defeating Xenia on total points for the match. Xenia was outpointed by 103 points, 410 to 307.

Riverdale took the first game, 75 to 51; the second, 80 to 41; the third, 61 to 58; the fourth, 67 to 52; the fifth, 61 to 55, and the sixth, 65 to 50.

C. Lowry, of Riverdale, was high point man of the match with seventy-nine for his six games, followed by Howdeshell, of the same team, with seventy-eight. Frame was high man for Xenia with seventy points, followed by Brennan with sixty-one.

Tip City will appear at Xenia for a league match next Monday night.

Following are the results of the match:

NATTY CINCINNATI HOLDS FIRST PLACE AGAINST CUB TEAM

Donohue In Fine Form In First Start Of Season

NEW YORK, May 29.—Boasting a lead of two full games over the Chicago Cubs, the Cincinnati Reds today won their first game in the National League today with apparently every intention of staying there.

The Porkville boys got a tough break Sunday when Red Lucas, their star twirler, was hit on the wrist during batting practice and laid up for nearly a month. But this loss was nullified yesterday when Pete Donohue, starting his first game of the season after a long salary huddle, held the Cubs to five hits and chalked up a 2 to 1 victory. Donohue, always a good hitter, drove in the winning run.

An even better pitching performance was flashed by Walter Beck, former Tulsa twirler now sporting the livery of the St. Louis Browns. He limited the White Sox to a pair of hits and won a 2 to 1 verdict. Lu Blue got a homer.

The Browns clambered back into the first division, as the Boston Red Sox were whitewashed, 2 to 0, by old Tom Zachary of the Senators. A double steal by Goslin and Judge beat Ed Morris, star Boston rookie twirler.

The business of stopping the Yankees degenerated from a joke into a farce when the world's champions swamped the battered Athletics, 11 to 4, for the fifth time in the six-game series. For the second time in a week the Yanks vanquished Lefty Grove, once their nemesis. Dugan and Lazzeri each collected their third homer of the series.

The A's now trail the Yanks by eight games and Connie Mack is getting desperate. He has shipped considerable cash and two pitchers—Jing Johnson, a veteran, and Bill Shores, a promising rookie—to Baltimore in exchange for George Egnashaw, mound ace of the Orioles.

Personalities IN SPORT

GEORGE M. LOTT

George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., was born on Oct. 15, 1906. Although not 22 years old Lott is already a nationally known tennis star.

The young Chicagoan plays an unorthodox game, in that he suffers several playing faults, yet he is a brilliant match player and is great at the volleying game. He is also noted for his playing courage.

Lott is five feet, eleven and one-half inches in height and weighs but 160 or so pounds, which makes for his speed and agility.

With all this home run hitting going on the outfielders have it soft. Nothing to do but watch the ball disappear over the fence.

Judging by the current weather the baseball managers made a mistake when they took their boys south to train. They should have practiced in an ice house.

Spread of gas was fatal to many at Hamburg, Germany, says a news dispatch. Kansas City, Mo., and Houston, Tex., should take note.

Strange as it may seem, few bright lights of the sports world ever get lit up.

Old Judge Landis doesn't have such a soft snap after all. He probably wore out several overcoats this spring attending opening games.

Speaking of non-stop flights nobody has anything on Prince Carol of Roumania, hunting a place to hang his hat.

NEW YORK YANKS APPARENTLY CAN'T BE STOPPED IN AMERICAN

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
NEW YORK, May 29.—Those five out of six games in which the Yankees knocked the Athletics for a series of reorganizations, ending in Philadelphia yesterday, have just about closed the book on the American League race. Race? Pardon my lip. I didn't even mean chase. The American League today is sponsoring an endurance contest, meaning that the public will need a lot of stamina to stay with the situation much longer. To all intents, the New York Yankees have won the pennant in the first six weeks of the season and, if you think this is being a trifle premature, I can only commend your attention to the following:

Nothing except a victory for the Athletics in the series just concluded could have kept the American League problem within focus. The collapse of that club simply meant that the bottom had fallen out of the business and that the opposition, actual enough while the Athletics were losing only four games between April 19 and May 24, had become only a flimsy pretense.

Oddly enough, the Yanks are not the foolproof outfit they were in 1927 and I don't mean that the contention is more fat headed, either. The Browns, Red Sox, Indians and Athletics appear to be stronger this year, potentially, and, in some cases, actually. The Tigers should be better, too, or at least as good as they were. The fact of the matter is that the contention can't hope to get anywhere with a club that wins, not only by the law of respective values but by ordination.

CARROLL - BINDER TEAM BEATS KIWANIS IN LEAGUE CONTEST

The Carroll-Binder Co. softball team found the Kiwanis Club easy picking and won its first American League game in three starts by defeating the Kiwanis 22 to 9 at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Monday night.

Prior to this game, neither of the teams in question had recorded a victory. It was the second straight reversal for Kiwanis.

The Kiwanians were leading 7 to 5 at the end of the fourth inning, but in the fifth Carroll-Binder crashed through with eight runs, deciding the issue at this point.

Swindler pitched with Randall catching for the winners. White and Hult formed the Kiwanis battery.

The scheduled National League game between the Firemen and St. Bigid High School has been postponed one day and will be played Tuesday night instead of Wednesday.

The Rotary-Hudson baseball game Tuesday has been postponed. There will be no game Wednesday on account of Memorial Day.

Carroll-Binder lineup: Whittington, 2b; Neville, 3b; Hoag, ss; Randall, c; Swindler, p; Jay, cf; Meale, lf; Grottenick, rf; Yeakley, 1b; Leshey, rt.

Kiwanis lineup: Pendry, lf; Coates, 3b; Hult, c; Kolb, ss; White, p; Marshall, cf; Messersmith, 1b; Adair, 2b; Paires, rf; Faulkner, 3b.

Scores by innings:
Carroll-Binder 3 0 2 0 8 1 2 5 1—22
Kiwanis 0 4 1 2 0 0 0 0 2—9

Before a capacity audience at the Cedarville Opera House, the senior class of Cedarville College presented its annual class play, "The Patsy," a three-act comedy, Monday night.

The difficult leading feminine role of "Patricia," was ably portrayed by Ruth Collins. Day Kennedy took the part of "Mr. Harrington," her father, with Lella LeMay as his mother.

Considerable histrionic ability was shown by Helen Iliffe in taking the part of "Grace," the spoiled big sister. James McMillan was cast as "Billie Caldwell," who was engaged to "Grace."

The part of "Tony Anderson," the young real estate man, who seemed to be always unfortunate, in love, but who at last realized his true love in "Patricia," was played by David Adair.

John Johnson performed as "Mr. O'Flaherty," the lawyer. Lois McFarland took the part of "Sadie Buchanan," while Herman LeMay contributed as his bit, the part of "Trib Busty," the taxi driver.

KIRK WILL SUCCEED
G. F. SCHLESINGER

COLUMBUS, O., May 29.—Former announcement of Governor Vic Donahue's selection of Harry J. Kirk, Defiance, as highway director to succeed George F. Schlesinger, whose resignation is effective June 15, was published today. Kirk is chief engineer in the state highway department, his term of office is at the pleasure of the governor.

With the exception of about sixteen months, during the administration of former Governor Harry L. Davis, Cleveland, Kirk has been connected with the state highway department since 1916.

Schlesinger, it was announced, will become chief engineer and managing director of the National Paying Brick Manufacturers' Association, Washington, D. C.

"Mr. Kirk's long service with the department, particularly as maintenance engineer and chief engineer during the present administration, makes him especially well qualified for the position," declared Schlesinger. "He has always made good in every position he held and I predict for him a successful administration of affairs of the department."

KIRK WILL SUCCEED
G. F. SCHLESINGER

COLUMBUS, O., May 29.—Former announcement of Governor Vic Donahue's selection of Harry J. Kirk, Defiance, as highway director to succeed George F. Schlesinger, whose resignation is effective June 15, was published today. Kirk is chief engineer in the state highway department, his term of office is at the pleasure of the governor.

With the exception of about sixteen months, during the administration of former Governor Harry L. Davis, Cleveland, Kirk has been connected with the state highway department since 1916.

Schlesinger, it was announced, will become chief engineer and managing director of the National Paying Brick Manufacturers' Association, Washington, D. C.

"Mr. Kirk's long service with the department, particularly as maintenance engineer and chief engineer during the present administration, makes him especially well qualified for the position," declared Schlesinger. "He has always made good in every position he held and I predict for him a successful administration of affairs of the department."

SPRINGFIELD TEAM TO FURNISH OPPOSITION ON HOLIDAY BILL

The Springfield A. I. U. baseball team will furnish the opposition against the Reserves in a Memorial Day game at Washington Park Wednesday afternoon. Play will be called at 3 o'clock.

Reserves have won five straight games. Either Schliff or McMichael will pitch for the local nine.

Schliff, Dayton hurler, has won four of the five games played while McMichael won his first start last Sunday.

Reserves have signed up a new shortstop for the season, something the team has been lacking. Duffy, billed as one of the best in Springfield, is the latest recruit for the position and he will be seen in uniform Wednesday.

The shortstop problem has caused the local management considerable anxiety. Eckert started off at short and got the "flu." Since then the Reserves have tried out, Fisher, Durnbaugh and Barlow at the position with indifferent results.

Following the baseball game, a softball game will be played between two poultrymen's teams, it is announced.

Conley, the former leader, hit safely twice and is now hitting .411. Several other members of the club also fanned their averages. Barlow suffered a relapse and dropped below .300.

As a whole, the team batting average was raised thirty-two percentage points to a mark of .250 for the five games played. Sixteen hits did the trick Sunday.

Reserves have been to bat 176 times, scored forty-nine runs, an average of ten per game, and made fifty-one hits, also an average of ten a game.

NATTY CINCINNATI HOLDS FIRST PLACE AGAINST CUB TEAM

Donohue in Fine Form
In First Start Of Season

NEW YORK, May 29.—Boasting a lead of two full games over the Chicago Cubs, the Cincinnati natty Cincy Reds are coasting along in first place in the National League today with apparently every intention of staying there.

The Porkville boys got a tough break Sunday when Red Lucas crashed through with eight runs, deciding the issue at this point. Swindler pitched with Randall catching for the winners. White

NEW YORK YANKS APPARENTLY CAN'T BE STOPPED IN AMERICAN

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
NEW YORK, May 29.—Those five out of six games in which the Yankees knocked the Athletics for a series of reorganizations, ending in Philadelphia yesterday, have just about closed the book on the American League race. Race? Pardon my lisp. I didn't even mean chase. The American League today is sponsoring an endurance contest, meaning that the public will need a lot of stamina to stay with the situation much longer. To all intents, the New York Yankees have won the pennant in the first six weeks of the season and, if you think this is being a trifle premature, I can only commend your attention to the following:

Nothing except a victory for the Athletics in the series just concluded could have kept the American League problem within focus. The collapse of that club simply meant that the bottom had fallen out of the business and that the opposition, actual enough while the Athletics were losing only four games between April 19 and May 24, had become only a flimsy pretense.

Oddly enough, the Yanks are not the foolproof outfit they were in 1927 and I don't mean that the contention is more far headed, either. The Browns, Red Sox, Indians and Athletics appear to be stronger this year, potentially, and, in some cases, actually. The Tigers should be better, too, or at least as good as they were. The fact of the matter is that the contention can't hope to get anywhere with a club that wins, not only by the law of respective values but by ordination.

CARROLL - BINDER TEAM BEATS KIWANIS IN LEAGUE CONTEST

The Carroll-Binder Co. softball team found the Kiwanis Club easy picking and won its first American League game in three starts by defeating the Kiwanis 22 to 9 at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Monday night.

Prior to this game, neither of the teams in question had recorded a victory. It was the second straight reversal for Kiwanis.

The Kiwanians were leading 7 to 5 at the end of the fourth inning, but in the fifth Carroll-Binder crashed through with eight runs, deciding the issue at this point.

CORN BILL-BUG HERE
Corn growers in several Ohio counties might as well make up their minds to add another free summer. They mostly call him Bill Corn Billbug. But his high hat name is Sphenophorus Zeae and he is likely to cause an extensive replanting of corn acreage in central and southern Ohio.

For the first time in several years, the corn billbug is inflicting severe damage upon the Ohio corn crop. While the pest appears each year, usually it is in such limited numbers that its feed bill is negligible. Last fall and this spring, however, weather conditions were such that the mortality rate among the white, footless grubs which were the billbugs at that time, was very slight. The billbugs are now in the adult stage, in the form of beetles some three-eighths of an inch long, with beaks or snouts an eighth of an inch long. These snouts they thrust into the tender stems of the corn as soon as the plants are above the ground, and feed on the tissue so that the corn stalk is deformed and sometimes killed, or suckers, which means that it will not form ears.

Entomologists of the Ohio State University Extension Service recommend that corn which is badly infested be replanted, with the new rows planted between the old. The first stand of corn should be left in place so that as many of the billbugs as possible will remain there to feed, rather than go to the new plants. Even then there is bound to be some damage to the second planting. About June 15 the billbugs will leave the corn, which will be too tough for their taste by that time, and will go to tenderer grass plants where they will feed and lay their eggs.

A PITCHER FULL OF CREAM
I MAY appear old-fashioned, And full of notions seem, But no meal seems quite right without A pitcher full of cream.

It is a golden promise Of rich and ample fare. No board is ever barren That has a cream-jug there.
A table with a pitcher Brim full of yellow cream Is one with good things glazing. Where savory platters steam.
The cream-jug is a symbol That past the kitchen door There stands the sort of cupboard Where there is always more!

SWEETHEARTS

AUTHOR OF "MY SON'S SWEETHEARTS," "CONFESSIONS OF A WIFE," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:
Lynda Fenton, a sympathetically impulsive girl, is private secretary to Ralph Armitage, who has an insane wife, Lynda's father, a drunkard, tells her that her mother deserted them, and that all women have their price. Sometimes she reflects and believes he's right.
Emily Andrews, who cherishes a secret fondness for David Kenmore, Lynda's companion from childhood, plots against Lynda.
(Now Go On With The Story)
David tells Lynda that he loves her, but she decides she doesn't want to be in love with any man. Then Lynda's father, too, deserts her, and Claire Stanhope comes to live with her. Ralph Armitage is enthralled with Lynda's innocent charms, and although he cannot marry her, he says he loves her, and wants her for his own. Emily Andrews contrives a break between Lynda and David, who resigns his job with Armitage and connects with a rival firm.
Ralph comes to believe that Lynda loves him, but she doesn't. Now she views the world with so-called modern eyes, and though she's fond of Ralph, she thinks of him as a plaything. Only Ralph's money would lead her to give herself to him, she says. At home she thinks of David, and longs for him. Then Emily Andrews comes with guile, and hints that David has turned to her. Ralph writes that he's going away, to stay until Lynda decides what she will do. David writes good-bye, and Ralph's father asks her to retain her position.
Lynda finds herself in a maze of doubt. She starts out to talk with Ralph; instead, she attends evangelistic services.
(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER LIX
TELL ME WHAT TO DO
Lynda seated herself quietly, and watched the stream of men and women, old and young, going up to shake the hand or even touch the royal blue cape that draped itself over the sort white crepe dress of the evangelist, with whom she wished to talk in private.

All of them seemed to take their problems to the splendid young woman there, and they all left smiling, although some of the smiles were a little trembling. The old walked away a little straighter, as though their dimming eyes had pierced the surrounding trouble and care, and saw in the distance an everlasting content, an everlasting peace.

The young held their heads high, with renewed courage and resolution. As each one passed her, Lynda became more and more imbued with the idea that if she could get what that beautiful and gracious woman had given to these people who were going home refreshed and invigorated, she would be able to say to herself that she was doing the one thing that was right for her to do.

The last "God bless and keep you" was said, and the last footfall was silenced, when, in answer to a softly-spoken "come with me," Lynda followed the blue-and-white-clad figure down the aisle, through a door, and entered a room which was as individually luxurious and exotic as the woman who entered before her.

Throwing herself into an easy chair with a long sigh, she turned to Lynda.
"Now, dear child, if it will comfort you to tell me your trouble, I will listen."
Although she had come eagerly to do this, words did not come easily.
"Come over here near me," said the woman.

Lynda took a low stool and, carrying it over to the big chair in which rested the form over which the blue and white draperies softly folded, she placed it close to the knees of the woman in the chair. The coppery brown eyes were soft with weariness and compassion, as she laid her arms over Lynda's shoulders.
"How did you come to my church this evening, child?"
Then the flood broke. Lynda Fenton started and with her arms lying on the woman's knees, and her face raised up to the understanding eyes that seemed to look at her through sympathetic mist, she told of her starved childhood, of David and their beautiful friendship, of her father's theory of the perverse nature of women, of her own great ambition and determination to make the world pay for her ability and strength of character.

"If this world is run by a just God, why have I had so much hard work and trouble to succeed, only to throw away my immortal soul on Ralph Armitage?" she asked. "For that matter, why should Ralph Armitage be tied to an insane wife."

ANTI-ITALY RIOTS OCCUR IN BELGRADE

VIENNA, May 29.—Severe street fighting between anti-Italian demonstrators and police supported by troops occurred in Belgrade today and thirty persons were seriously wounded, dispatches from the Jugo-Slavian capitals stated.
Four of the wounded may die. The fighting started when huge throngs crowded about the ministry and threatened to storm the building following the receipt of Premier Mussolini's note protesting against the recent anti-Italian demonstrations and demanding immediate indemnity.
The entire police force of Belgrade attempted to disperse the mob. The demonstrators barricaded themselves in the streets and the fighting lasted from midnight until early morning. Many arrests were made.

NEW YORK, May 29.—A professional movie-goer's week:

Sunday—"Fly Low Jack and the Game," first all-amateur feature photoplay to be exhibited nationally, is evidence the art of the motion picture isn't developing exclusively in commercial studios. The acting is characteristically amateur but photography is good and story better than the average Hollywood tale. It cost the Rochester Film Guild less than $100 to make it. Fans everywhere will have an opportunity to see it, as part of a program being given free "road show" presentation by the Eastman company.

Monday—When Lilli Damiti, R. Colman's new starring partner, arrived from Europe, her mamma, trying to be important, was much in evidence and asked newspaper cameramen to photograph her beside her "baby." The photographers politely snapped her with plateless cameras. La Damiti certainly is an eye-ful.

Tuesday—The screen has had plenty of Carmens, including Theda

Bara, Geraldine Farrar, Pola Negri and Dolores Del Rio, but the best cinema Carmen yet revealed is Raquel Meller. Her version of the famous story, made in Spain in authentic locations with a purely Latin cast, is exciting and convincing.

Wednesday—Camilla Horn, love-lieft of recent importations, is rapidly picking up an English vocabulary, and she's a frank frau-lieft. "Write about me, I care not what eel it, be eel good or bad, but write—write lots and lots!" she tells you. She thinks J. Barrymore, opposite whom she plays in "Red Tempest," is a great actor, agreeing with J. Barrymore. Incidentally, the latter avers that announcement of his retirement from the screen is premature. "One more year, and then back to the stage."

"Miss New Orleans" at the International beauty pageant at Galveston, Tex., in June is to be Miss Georgia Payne, 17-year-old miss with golden-brown hair.

Thursday—Is film art progressing? "Ramona," with Dolores Del Rio, is a beautiful photoplay, miles beyond the early screen version of the famous old novel; but "Kentucky Courage," another adaptation of J. Fox, Jr.'s "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," doesn't indicate that screen producers have learned much since the book was filmed the first time. Richard Barthelmess' fine and restrained acting is the only thing that saves it from mediocrity.

Friday—Jean Hersholt is here, seeing New York for the first time.

In it Hersholt plays a real lover, in contrast to his usual heavy or character roles. My wife went all through it. It's what Hollywood calls a "natural."

TESTIMNY READ AT TRIAL OF SLAYER

CINCINNATI, O., May 29.—Harold Nason, on trial for second degree murder in connection with the slaying of Harold "Gus" Fitch, alleged hi-jacker and bootlegger of Reading, O., may not take the stand in his own defense, it was indicated today, because his testimony, given at the trial of Nathan Rosen, of Detroit, jointly indicted with Nason for first degree murder, was read to the jury here yesterday. Nason is on trial in the criminal division of Common Pleas Court here with Judge Stanley Struble presiding.

Rosen was acquitted by a jury last August after Nason's testimony has exonerated the Detroit man. At Rosen's trial Nason testified he went to a garage, owned by Harry Turney, at Reading, O., to get some whiskey he had stored there and that while in the garage someone opened fire on him. Nason testified he engaged in a gun battle with his assailant and when the smoke cleared away he found Fitch dead in the place.

JAPS DEFEND ACT

GENEVA, May 29.—Japan, it is a note to the permanent secretariat of the League of Nations declared today that intervention in China arose solely from a desire to protect Japanese interests. Japan went into the issue in detail giving a lengthy explanation. The note guaranteed that the Japanese troops would be withdrawn from China as soon as Japanese lives and properties were considered safe.

JOY OVER BATHTUB
MAYFIELD, Ky., May 29.—A. Arington, near here, is rejoicing over the installation of a bathtub in the town—the first one ever. It was placed in the home of Lindsey Barker. The reason for the death in a bathtub is attributed to the fact that the place has no water works system. Citizens claim, however, that the old wash tub method has always been more or less a favorite with the more fastidious residents.

HOW USE FERTILIZER FOR CORN, POTATOES

The need of using the proper methods in applying fertilizer is well recognized and of great importance from the standpoint of getting the most economic return from the fertilizer application.

The American Society of Agronomy, through its committee on fertilizer application, states that the best method is affected by many factors but that a few definite conclusions may be made on the basis of present experimental data. Some of these are:

Barring serious injury to germination, the nearer fertilizer is placed to the seed the more effective in promoting early growth.

For practically all intertilled crops (which includes corn and potatoes) the safest method of hilling and drill row application is to apply the fertilizer in bands along both sides of the seed and at a depth varying with the crop.

Or the individual carriers of plant food, those carrying nitrogen are most likely to cause injury to germination; those carrying potash stand intermediate; and those carrying phosphates are least apt to cause injury.

This committee of the Agronomy Society is composed of Prof. Emil Traugott, University of Wisconsin, chairman; Doctor F. W. E. Bear, Ohio State University; Professor Sidney B. Haskill, formerly Director of the Massachusetts Experiment Station; and Professor John R. Fahn of the University of Georgia.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

EARTH COMES UP LIKE THUNDER WHEN AVIATOR USES PARACHUTE

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The earth comes up like thunder when an aviator goes down from an airplane in a parachute.

This thrill of all thrills is more and more becoming the common experience of army pilots, but it remains the biggest thrill of their lives, the first time they "go over the side and down."

A young enlisted flier who had just made his first jump related his experience to a group of newspaper men recently at the Langley Field aviation show.

"It wasn't so hard to jump," he said, "but there's no explaining the awful, panicky feeling you have in that short moment when your chute isn't open and there's nothing below you but a lot of air and the ground rushing up like thunder. Your courage is all buoyed up by reassuring speeches of officers before you turn loose the ship, and if you don't think too hard you won't realize what you're doing. You just keep on saying over and over—they always open."

Grand, Glorious Feeling

"All the same, it's one grand and glorious feeling when the old seat under you tightens and you can look up and see that big billow of white letting you down easy. It doesn't take long for the pilot chute to pull the big sail out of the bag, though, and an awful jolt tells you she's open. Your serious worries are over then."

You may get scratched up when you hit the ground, or you may be dragged through treetops if there's a wind and you can't handle the chute, but you won't get killed.

"When you first leave the ship the ground looks just like it did inside the plane. Then you don't see anything for a second, and then you see it again, bigger and bigger, and awful close. It's mighty scary. You are moving too fast for your eye to adjust itself to the changing altitude, and you see the earth in jerky flashes, the last one when it seems as if you're going to smash sure. Then the chute opens and you go down gradually."

"Falling in the water is dangerous. When a trained pilot jumps he takes off the leg straps before he hits and rides the belly band to the water. It's easy to undo this and swim off from under the falling parachute."

is about like a jump from a ten foot fence without one as far as the jolt is concerned, he said.

Jolt on Landing

The new parachutes are made of heavy white silk. The cloth is not on sale generally, and it is pretty floating down in the air. Every month the army inspects its chutes and once every six months they are dropped from a flying plane with a load equal to a man attached, to test their strength.

It is fairly easy for even the layman to realize that failure of a parachute to open must be very rare when he has examined the army chutes.

In the first place the big silk bag is packed and folded so that the least air pressure will enter an opening fold, and each fold leads to a deeper one, so that the air goes clean into the parachute from the first. In addition, there is a little steel ribbed spring umbrella, kept shut only by the canvas pack covering the chute. This opens as soon as the pack is released, and snaps so it will stay open without any air pressure at all. All necessary to open this little umbrella, called the "pilot," is to loosen the pack covering.

Pulling the String
The pack is of heavy canvas, and is held shut by heavy elastic cords stretched very tightly around the chute and attached to the edges of it. Where the edges meet there is an arrangement of slots, held together by a long wire plunger. When you pull the parachute ring this pulls out the plunger and releases the pack covering, which is flung open by the elastic cords. The pilot chute then pops out, catches in the air and pulls open the big chute. Officers said they have seen a chute wide open fifteen feet below the point where the ring was pulled, and that twenty feet below they have seen the chute "holding air," that is, resisting the downward rush of the passenger. Army fliers have all the confidence in the world in their parachutes.

Attached to the ropes of the parachutes there is a heavy padded seat which catches the force of the opening chute and prevents ropes from cutting through the body of the passenger. This seat is as large as the average chair bottom, and rides comfortably to the ground.

GIRLS VOLUNTEER FOR RADIUM CURE

NEW YORK, May 29.—Two of the five New Jersey girls who are said to be doomed to die of radium poisoning, contracted while they were in the employ of the United States Radium Corporation at Orange, N. J., today had volunteered to submit to scientific experiments in the hope that a cure may be found for the dreaded malady.

They are Miss Matherine Schaub, of Newark, and Mrs. Edna Hussman, of Hillside.

ASK LINDBERGH TO DEDICATE AIR MAIL

DAYTON, O., May 29.—Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh has been invited to inaugurate the service over the Louisville, Ky.,-Cleveland air mail line July 1.

The planes have been assembled at Cincinnati to be tested and flown over the route to familiarize the pilots with the landing fields, at Louisville, Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Akron and Cleveland.

Without the bark, the tree dies—
Without paint the house decays.

Any piece of unprotected wood exposed to the elements soon decays. Therefore, in order to prevent this decay, all wood surfaces exposed to the elements must be protected.

Hanna's Green Seal Paint

will safeguard the wood surface of your home. It protects the surface in all kinds of weather and gives a beauty of finish unsurpassed.

See the formula on every can, showing you what good paint contains. Follow directions carefully.

The paint the best of painters use.

Tested . . . from Maine to Arizona for Power, Speed and Endurance

LONG ago, Hupmobile engineers found that the rigorous tests provided by Nature under varied climatic conditions far exceed those imposed by factory proving grounds. That is why every new Hupmobile model is tested in the field—on real mountains and under all atmospheric conditions from coast to coast. Maine and Minnesota give the sub-zero temperatures that prove efficiency of starting and lubricating systems. Uniontown Hill and Pike's Peak make strenuous demands on power and axle gearing. Cooling is checked at 120 degrees in Arizona; carburetion in Colorado's high altitudes and at sea-level in Florida. Thus, no matter where you live or drive, Hupmobile engineers have preceded you. One more reason why Hupmobile performance and stamina continue to win thousands of new owners from the ranks of those who formerly paid far more for equal luxury and dependability.
